AMERICA DECLINES TO OBSERVE SECURITY MEET

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (AP)—The Washington government today declined the invitation extended to Geneva yesterday to send an observer to the security conference.

The department said that American participation in the work of the Preparatory Commission on Disarmament now in session in Geneva, would continue and that the Washington government will attend any international conference for limitation of armaments which might be the outgrowth of the work of the Preparatory Commission.

It was emphasized that the Washington administration feels it would be useless to participate in the security discussions because no commitments by the United States to enforce security agreement was possible.

BALDWIN NUN ON SOVIET PROPOSAL

LONDON, Dec. 1. (AP)—Premier Baldwin was absolutely noncommittal today when questioned in the House of Commons regarding the Russian proposal at Geneva for total disarmament.

Mr. Baldwin said his knowledge of the proposals at present is derived entirely from press reports and added:

"Until we are advised officially that the Soviet government is putting forward such proposals I prefer to make no comment."

The Russian proposal aroused anger and contempt in the London press today.

Powers of all shades of political coloring damned the Soviet scheme with vituperative adjectives.

It was declared, among other things, "a grotesque joke," "a grotesque mockery," "an impudentrodominate" and "a political bluff," put forward with the tongue in the cheek.

Some of the sharpest criticism appeared in the editorial columns of liberal organs, which sometimes themselves incur derision for their asserted weak pacifism.

It was contended that the Soviet scheme was put forward with the obvious idea of placing the other governments in a false position.

The Russians, it was urged, could have felt little uneasiness in submitting a program of self-sacrifice which they knew they would not be called upon to make, but which they hoped would show the world how wicked "capitalistic nations" are now how good and peace-loving are the Soviets.

The Labor and Socialistic press also plan a challenge to the other powers to reveal to what extent they are in earnest when they talk of disarmament and declare that the reply of the powers will disclose their real intentions.

REDS HURL NEW CAPITALISTIC CHARGE

GENEVA, Dec. 1. (Exclusive)—The Soviet delegation today issued a memorandum bitterly attacking the "capitalistic powers," accusing them of hypocrisy and unwillingness honesty to disarm, and warning against an inevitable complete disarmament is adopted.

"The responsibility for the World War was the direct outcome of competition among capitalist states driven to extend colonial possessions and markets for increasing production," said the Moscow statement.

BOB AH CITES FAITH IN REDS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (AP)—Attributing good faith to Russia in its proposal for complete disarmament of nations, Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today declared disarmament proposals must be treated with respect from whatever source they may come.

Europe, he said, is more heavily armed today than at the beginning of the World War and he warned that unless relief is afforded from the military burdens economic ruin must ensue.

TAKES LIKE CANCER

"While we have been talking disarmament," he declared, "arming has gone forward. There can be no such thing as recovery in Europe with this ever-increasing burden of armaments resting upon the people."

"Taxes in Europe are literally like cancer eating away the stamina of European people. This lingering, hesitating, chess-playing effort at disarmament."

Today when questioned in the House of Commons regarding the Russian proposal at Geneva for total disarmament.

Mr. Baldwin said his knowledge of the proposals at present is derived entirely from press reports and added:

Such denials and transfers will come with the expiration of the series of sixty-day licenses, which the commission has made effective today.

Individual members of the commission have from the very first realized that elimination of some 300 broadcast stations is the only real solution for the present overcrowding of the air channels. This number is approximately the total of stations which the air during the breakdown of the law of 1926.

legal effect and so far as this department is concerned, no practical effect. We do not know what went on in the jury's mind. Perhaps they did not want to determine whether such distribution was lawful. There may have been concluded only that there was no conspiracy among these men.

NO LET-UP PLANNED

"Enforcement will go on as usual," Winkler added. "This is just one case. There will be no abatement of our diligence in similar cases. Should the same set of facts arise again, we will present them to the United States District Attorney. To say that this one verdict by a District Court will sidetrack the conspiracy theory is as ridiculous as to say that we would stop arresting bootleggers just because one man charged with bootlegging was acquitted on the particular set of facts in his case."

The overt act charged in the conspiracy indictment against Winkler was the sale of a five-gallon keg of unfermented grape juice of low alcoholic content to Miles Ardrey, a photographer in Winkler's office. This keg was placed in a room of normal temperature, its contents were opened, and the resulting taste made of its mounting alcoholic content. After twenty-five days, Winkler said, at the trial, the same keg was found to contain a 12.5 per cent content of alcohol by volume.

Winkler tonight said there are no cases now pending in the federal court in which unfermented grape juice played a part and that at this time no investigations involving a similar set of facts are under way.

ence and attitude toward work of the producing population.

"In our earlier days, advance was in considerable measure attributable to the opening of new markets, but during the past quarter century this has not been a major influence. The principal factors in the recent increase in productivity are what may be called human as distinguished from natural factors."

One of the most profound modern tendencies is the swift expanding use of electric energy.

FOREIGN COMMERCE

For the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Dr. Julius Klein, chief, pointed out that American foreign trade today represented 16 per cent of the world's total commerce, whereas in 1913 it represented only 11 per cent. He predicted that "manufactured goods will continue to gain in relative importance in our export trade," while the growth of population at home will "continue to call for the consumption of a larger and larger proportion of foodstuffs and raw materials produced by our farm."

He foresees vigorous competition for foreign trade in the future, but pointed out that with proper effort on the part of American business men, "we shall be able to maintain our share of the steadily expanding world commerce."

SHAY, LONG IN BASEBALL EYE, PASSES

Former Manager of Club at Kansas City Fails to Survive Wounds

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 1. (AP)—Daniel C. Shay, 55 years of age, veteran baseball player and former manager of the Kansas City American Association baseball club, died in a hospital here today, apparently a suicide victim.

Shay was found, wounded last night in his room at a local hotel, where he lived alone. There was a revolver on the floor. He suffered a stroke of paralysis about a year ago and friends said he had been in ill health and despondent since then.

"Hustlin' Dan," as he was known as a player, was the son of John McGraw with the New York Giants twenty years ago and played shortstop with the Giants. He was a star of the Kansas City Blues in 1908 from the St. Louis (Mo.) club and managed the Blues in 1910 and 1911, leading them to second place in the association the latter year.

In 1917 Shay was charged with the murder of a negro waiter in an Indianapolis hotel. He was acquitted, the jury deciding he shot in self-defense. Of late years he had done some scouting during the summer months for big-league clubs.

GOVERNMENT TO ACT

The murders were revealed when the government called a case against one of the Cleary defendants. Cleary and Castaneda were to have been witnesses. The government will investigate the episode.

The several times promised sanguinary warfare between rival Chicago gangs for control of gambling and bootlegging now is only a matter of days, it was reported here. The opinion is based in part on word from Springfield, Ill., that a kidnap of Joseph Aiello, accused of plotting the assassination of "Scarface" Al Capone and Tony Lombardo, sought to obtain machine guns, pistols and rifles there. One of the guns the buyer was examining went off, killing the proprietor. The buyer is in jail.

DENIES SMITING STORY

"Applause," was the reply of the manager of the Atlantic Hotel to a police statement of several days ago that a machine gun had been found in the hotel. If a gunman wanted to spray a cigar store across the street, as the police say, he would have needed the machine of a constabulary, the manager added.

The cigar store was frequented by Capone and Lombardo. It was the police theory that enemies intended ambushing the pair.

There were no guns or tripods or other equipment for sniping in the designated room when the police entered it, the manager said.

DAWES OUT OF PARTY CONTEST

Presidential possibilities which have continued himself a candidate for nomination.

It was quickly noted that Gen. Dawes did not close the door to acceptance of the nomination, thereby putting himself in this respect on the same footing as the President. Neither the Vice-President nor Mr. Coolidge has said he would refuse the nomination if he should be drafted by the convention.

It is evident that the admirers of the Vice-President intend to proceed on the assumption that he will accept if nominated. They are well aware of the fact that Gen. Dawes will not lift a finger to gain the nomination for himself and what influence he can wield will be exerted to put Lowden over.

DOUBTS ON LOWDEN

But the Dawes followers do not believe that Lowden can win, on account of the antagonism of the eastern wing of the party, and they predict that Lowden eventually will retire in favor of Dawes.

The Dawesites see in Secretary of Commerce Hoover the man whom the Vice-President must beat if he is to be nominated, and the Hooverites envisage Dawes as the real opponent of Hoover after the preliminary convention balloting.

Gen. Dawes thinks that the Senate is about ready to reform its rules so as to minimize the evils of filibustering.

"I feel," he said, "that the filibuster in the last session of Congress resulted in a feeling among Senators themselves that a change in the rules not only is advisable, but necessary. Several resolutions were introduced by Senators in the last session to remedy the evils of the filibuster in the short session, the only one that seemed to have the most general support being a provision for applying cloture to revenue and appropriation bills during a short session. That would take out of the hands of minorities and at times individuals the power to threaten the blocking of government business and to compel the calling of an extra session unless concessions in general legislation were made to the minority or individual."

CLOTURE FAVORED

"I am in favor of majority cloture for I believe it necessary to enable the majority to exercise its constitutional functions. But I will be glad to see any approach to this reform accomplished, such as the application of cloture to revenue and appropriations bills in the short session."

PASTOR TAKES ACTION ON CHICKEN THEFTS

PERU (Ind.) Dec. 1. (Exclusive)—Rev. C. T. Walker, pastor of the United Brethren Church at Erie, east of Peru, will not permit chicken thieves to interfere with attendance at his meetings, for he has arranged with the men of his congregation to patrol the highways of the township while his evangelistic services are being conducted. This step is taken because chickens have been stolen from that neighborhood lately. In a public meeting Mr. Walker cautions all persons driving in that township "to have lights burning and be willing to stop and be questioned."

STATE RESTS IN MURDER TRIAL

Lilliendahl Case Develops Tumultuous Scene

Defense Pleas for Instructed Verdict Denied

Widow Sobs Bitterly as Lawyer Argues

MARY LANDING (N. J.) Dec. 1. (P)—The Lilliendahl murder trial moved toward a speedy conclusion today as a tumultuous scene just before adjournment, when the state unexpectedly rested its case, a defense attorney asked and was denied a directed verdict of not guilty, and Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl broke down and sobbed in court.

The state's side of the case against the widow and Willis Beach, charged with the murder of the woman's aged husband, opened Monday and had been generally expected to continue into next week. Only sixty-five of the 100 witnesses the state had said it would call had occupied the stand when Prosecutor Hinkle suddenly turned to the judge and said: "The state rests."

Robert H. McCarty, counsel for Mrs. Lilliendahl, recalled one state witness for two questions of cross-examination and then made his plea for a directed verdict.

WIDOW IN TEARS
As he delivered an impassioned argument to sustain his motion, Mrs. Lilliendahl began to cry quietly and then her shoulders shook with convulsive sobs. Her 8-year-old son, Alfred, ran to her side and she embraced him fervently. He also wept.

Soon after Justice Campbell denied the motion for a directed verdict, mother and son gained control of themselves. Court then was adjourned for the day and the defendants were taken back to their cells for the night. Beach, who was not affected by the motion, showed no sign of emotion or even interest while counsel for his co-defendant was pleading with the court.

When court opens tomorrow McCarty will make his opening address to the jury and begin to present his witnesses. He and counsel for Beach together expect to produce only forty witnesses, so that court attendance predict that the trial, with the help of a Saturday session, probably will reach the jury stage by Monday night or Tuesday.

TEXAN RECALLED
The state witness recalled for cross-examination by McCarty was Samuel Bark, a Texas "trick" roper of the traveling circuses and wild west shows. He was one of the state's star witnesses and was on the stand most of the morning session.

In his testimony, the most sensational of the trial, Bark swore that shortly after the killing of Dr. Lilliendahl he was in Dallas.

POSTMORTEM TESTIFIES
The total of witnesses today was thirteen and besides Bark the only one in the "star" class was Mrs. Carolyn Tamberlain, postmistress of South Highland, the home town of both defendants. She said that from early this spring until the very day of the killing Beach used to mail at least two letters every day addressed to "Peggy Anderson," and the letters were called for by Mrs. Lilliendahl.

Mrs. Tamberlain, her husband and a friend all testified that Mrs. Lilliendahl was known to them only as Peggy Anderson until midsummer, when Dr. Lilliendahl made inquiries to find out if his wife were getting mail that he did not know about and pointed out "Peggy" to them as his wife.

The postmistress said that the last Peggy Anderson letter was mailed by Beach the morning of the killing and that when Mrs. Lilliendahl received it she "sort of moaned." Late in the afternoon, she said, Beach came into the combination poolroom and store again and got a cold drink, saying he was very hot.

LOYALTY PROOF IN PUDDING

Rum From Jamaica, Cloves From Zanzibar, Spice From India, Apples From Canada, Currants From Australia Mixed With Ceremony for King's Board

LONDON, Dec. 1. (P)—Christmas pudding fanciers of old England came into their own today. The ceremonial mixing of a huge Christmas pudding for King George from ingredients specified in the Empire Marketing Board's official recipe attracted high dignitaries from all wards of the ancient city of London to the Mansion House, home of the Lord Mayor.

Representatives from the British dominions and colonies attended and saw the fruits, spices and foodstuffs from their homelands weighed, measured, mixed and finally put to boil for twenty hours on the huge range of the Mansion House kitchen.

The well-boiled delicacy will be turned over to the Earl of Meath, founder of the British Empire Day movement, to Sir Charles Balfour, the Lord Mayor of London, for safe keeping.

When Christmas approaches the pudding goes in state to Buckingham Palace. However, the King may not eat it. He gets as many Christmas puddings as he can get from the United States kept for the palace board and the others go to orphan homes and other London institutions.

Old England furnished beer and bread crumbs for the pudding, while the rest of the ingredients came from abroad.

Beach went to see him in Baltimore to borrow money, and confessed that he had killed the aged doctor, but expected to "beat the case."

He flatly denied that he had told Phillips, attorney at record for Mrs. Lilliendahl, that two men, Clyde Thompson and Bill Sells, had driven to a place near the scene of the killing in connection with a narcotics deal and had seen Beach shoot the doctor.

He denied that he had offered to suppress the testimony of these two men for $500, and to produce evidence to clear Beach. McCarty promised that he would put Phillips on the stand to refute this testimony.

Bark said he had gone to Phillips at the behest of Thompson and Beach, and that Phillips had put him off, telling him to get out of town as quickly as possible, promising to go to see him in Baltimore.

CROSS-QUESTIONED
When the state rested and Bark was called back to the stand McCarty first asked him where he was when the killing was in Dallas. Bark had said he was a lawyer in a small way, although he had never taken any bar examination, and one of his cards had been produced giving his office as the Bark Building in Dallas.

McCarty's other question was as to whether the witness had any criminal record. He replied that he had not "so far as I know." It was indicated that defense testimony will be given on this point also. He was leaving the courthouse this morning to return to Baltimore, where he has been staying with his wife of six months, the defense served him with a subpoena, which will keep him in town as long as they may need him.

EX-GOV. HADLEY DIES IN ST. LOUIS

Chancellor of Washington University Expires

Widely Known in National Educational Field

Brilliant Political Career Made in Missouri

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 1. (P)—Former Gov. Hadley, chancellor of Washington University, and well known in national educational circles, died at his home here at 718 1/2 street tonight, after a prolonged illness. He returned recently from the hospital after a breakdown in the latter part of August and was thought to be recovering.

Hadley, well known in national educational circles, suffered a breakdown in August, but recovered during the month of September, and was removed from the Barnes Hospital to his home.

PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICAN
Hadley fought illness even while he was Governor of Missouri, and after his first term moved to Colorado in the hope of recovering. He had regained his strength fully when appointed chancellor of the university. Known as one of the "Progressive" type of Republicans, he acted as a floor leader to have the late Theodore Roosevelt nominated at the Republican convention at which William Howard Taft got the nomination.

He gained fame in Missouri, when he ousted the great oil interests from the state when serving as Attorney-General.

He served in that office from 1905 to 1909 and then occupied the Governor's chair for four years.

MENTIONED FOR PRESIDENT
His career as an official in Missouri and an educator brought him out to consideration for Presidential candidacy and again to the brink of election to the Vice-Presidency. Political leaders said it was only the disorganized condition of the Republican Presidential convention of 1912 which prevented his nomination. In 1924 Hadley turned a deaf ear to a group of national leaders that he allow his name to go before the Republican convention for Vice-President, giving as his reason, the sense of duty he felt to his constituents.

He was born in Olathe, Kan., February 20, 1872. He married Miss Agnes Lee of Kansas City October 8, 1902.

Strike leaders said that the strikers were prepared to stay out of the mines until their demands were granted.

Rockefeller, Jr., Tells Workers Business Ethics
NEW YORK, Dec. 1. (P)—Declaring character to be the foundation of success, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., told employees of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, at a company club banquet tonight, that American business should re-emphasize a high standard of business ethics.

The four qualities that he named as components of character are integrity, obedience to law, clean living and singleness of purpose or loyalty.

He said, "The great majority of them undoubtedly are wise and in the interest of the people. Some unnecessarily hamper and restrict business and do not serve the common good."

Terrible skin now lovely and clear

"AFTER three months of regular treatment," writes Miss A., "I now have the clear complexion I used to dream about and long for. Only the girl who has suffered as I did, with continual eruptions on my face just when I wanted to look my best, can know how I felt. I feel I owe a lifelong debt of gratitude to the friend who told me the best thing to do. There's nothing like it. I tried everything and I know. Lotions and salves help but they don't get at the root of the trouble. Like most skin troubles mine were signs of poison in the body. Nujol cleared those all out in three months. I took a tablespoonful every night. Never missed once. I've got my reward now."

Difficulty in Calculating Future Cost Great

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1. (Exclusive)—Nearness of an agreement

One of the Colorado River Commission's most interesting hydrological studies was from the proposed Boulder dam to Los Angeles was rejected today in the arrival of Governor of Nevada, and the announcement that the Colorado River of Arizona is expected tomorrow.

When Nevada and Arizona have reached an agreement in the matter, the Colorado River will be to the California members of the commission and representatives of the Los Angeles and San Diego areas.

Difficulties experienced by the so-called fact finding commission, which has been in session here for several days, are being explained by the fact that the figures must be based upon the "probabilities" ten years from now, determined by the Colorado River Commission. The differences stated that much of the major point of differences rests upon

At the time Souders dam is completed the dam is expected to develop 790,000 kilowatts and the difference between the cost of that power delivered at Los Angeles and the power delivered at the proposed plant at Los Angeles is the immediate objective of the conference.

Fumbles and Penalties Hurt Chances of Romans

BY BOB RAY

With advantage of all the breaks that came their way and there were quite a few, Polytechnic's gold-jerseyed mechanics tossed a monkey wrench into the L. A. Right end, was it. You've heard of guys having their noses to the grindstone. Well, Price had his nose on the grindstone all afternoon. Price scored the first Poly touchdown in the first quarter when he scooped up a fumble, straight-armed one L. A. man and galloped some sixty-four yards down the gridiron. Price also scored a Poly fumble just as the first period ended, and capped off his following activities in the last quarter when he pounced on a blocked Roman punt on the Blue and White 5-yard line. Furtch and Morgan carried the oval over from here in two plays for the other Roman score.

MAJOR LEAGUE SCHEDULE OUT

Early Opening and Closing Dates Announced; Season Ends September 30

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 1. (AP)—A record for speed in schedule drafting was established by National and American League baseball representatives, who completed their work here today. This schedule-making meeting opened yesterday and the sessions, committeemen said, were most harmonious.

It was decided to open and close the major-league seasons slightly earlier in 1928 than in 1927, the new opening date being April 11 and the closing September 30.

Heretofore the schedule had been made public in February. The schedule committee decided to make the playing cards available to the newspapers early in January.

THEY PACK THE PILL FOR WASHINGTON--AND HOW!

Here's Enoch Bagshaw's band of brave little boys who make up the Husky backfield and will arrive today with fellow team members for the purpose of taming the Trojans in the Coliseum tomorrow afternoon. If you think "Baggy's" backs are small figure up their 185-pound average for yourself: Geehan, quarterback, 170; Capt. Pat Wilson, fullback, 182; "Chuck" Carroll, halfback, 182; Louis Tesreau, halfback, 184. If the Huskies beat the Trojans tomorrow Stanford will come into undisputed possession of the Coast Conference title and the Huskies will be tied with the Trojans for second. If the Trojans win they will tie with Stanford for the tag, as the battle has quite a bearing on the championship.

BEARS AIM TO SELECT SAME GRIDIRON RIVALS

BERKELEY, Dec. 1. (Exclusive)—The problem of selecting opponents for the 1928 football season will be the aim of the more important considerations of the committee of five University of California representatives at the annual gathering of the Pacific Coast Conference in Portland, the 7th, 8th and 9th inst.

CHARLIE ERB

Virtually the same schedule which was played in 1927 will be the aim of the California delegation for the 1928 playing season. It is announced by W. W. Monahan, graduate student manager of the university. Seven dates are considered certain on the Bear schedule, including the University of Southern California, Stanford, Washington, St. Mary's, Santa Clara, the San Francisco Olympic Club and Nevada.

Idaho, coached by Charley Erb, captain of one of Andy Smith's California "wonder teams," and one of the few quarterbacks who has provoked sports writers to the use of the term "excellent" field general, is favored for a game in 1928. The Vandals have not played here for several years and a contest with comparative

BAGSHAW'S TEAM STRONG AS ANY HE HAS CREATED

Ten Huskies in Final Collegiate Appearance Against Trojans at Coliseum Tomorrow

BY HEAVEN DYER

Don't be alarmed if Mother Earth throws a shimmy this morning. It probably won't be an earthquake but merely the mammoth University of Washington footballers landing in town for their game with Southern California at the Coliseum tomorrow. The Huskies pack more avoirdupois than a herd of elephants and our fair city may tremble a bit when Enoch Bagshaw unloads his thirty-three charges at the Arcade Station at 9 o'clock this morning.

In the great Northwest you don't count for much unless you weigh at least 180 pounds. Bagshaw's teams have always run to beat and this year's aggregation is probably more meaty than any of his past eleven. The backfield has three men over 190 pounds. They are Louis Tesreau, Capt. Pat Wilson and "Chuck" Carroll. The latter three are the Coast's leading cover. Washington's line is the biggest on the Coast from tackle to tackle, most of the players weighing in somewhere between the 190 and 300-pound mark.

TREMBLENDOUS DRIVE Running from punt formation, both Carroll and Tesreau got up tremendous yards and once they hit something has to give. It's generally the opposition. Coach Howard Jones hopes his players won't have to give too much Saturday.

The Huskies will be quartered at the Ambassador Hotel during their stay here. Alumni have planned a banquet tomorrow night to be held at Marchetti's, Fifth and Western.

This Washington football team is considered by many to be as powerful as the Bagshaw machine that cleaned up the Pacific Coast Conference two years ago. Some observers believe that the 1927 team has more power than any other eleven ever developed at Washington.

Bagshaw and his men are determined to break the undefeated record of the Trojans in the Coast Conference. Washington's 12-0 defeat by Stanford is the only loss in its record this year, and a team that can drive through California when the Bears are at top form, as they were for the Husky contest, may be depended upon to give the Trojans a real struggle.

NOT SLEEPING

The fact that Washington defeated Oregon by only one touchdown in the Huskies' last game should not be interpreted as indicating that the Purple Tornado is slipping. Washington had regarded the Oregon game too lightly and the Weeds went there with blood in their eyes. For Washington it was an off-game, with southern California looming up as one of the big contests of the year for Oregon it was the last game of the season and an opportunity to redeem themselves in part for the poor showing made this year. No team has ever fought harder than the Oregonians fought that day and

BROWNING LIMELIGHT TOO SMOKY
Popping of Flashlight Guns Heralds Return of Daddy From Retirement, and Hotel Patrons Raise Fuss Over Publicity
NEW YORK, Dec. 1. (Exclusive)—Edward West Browning, the silver-haired real-estate dealer and ladies' man, came out of retirement last night, but his return to the white lights was not much of a triumph. Last night the burr of the old star was strong, so he climbed nimbly into his working clothes—the mohair tuxedo with the fancy satin piping. The occasion was the weekly dance of the Crescent Club, a social club which no one had heard of until a few weeks ago, when Browning of it was the smoke of the camera, Browning said.
fired a gaudy cup for the winner of its beauty contest. Eighty pretty girls were there, and a mob of newspaper photographers.
Then the show came. A few minutes before the ball was to start the management of the hotel said there would be no more dancing here, which Browning was to attend. The hotel had nothing against Browning but it felt some alarm at the mere of publicity his presence might lead to. Its guests were complaining. "It wasn't me they objected to," Browning said.

(P)—One English woman and three Chinese passengers were wounded this afternoon when "intimidators" fired on a trolley car in an effort to induce the car to desert its route and thus hinder transportation service. Chinese policemen killed two of the assailants after which all the drivers and conductors on the system returned to their depots and the trolley car service was suspended.

REMUS CALLED "RAT" IN PRISON
Ex-Convict Used to Attack Insanity Defense
Bootlegger's Fits Just Anger, State Contends
Slayer Again in Outburst; Angeleno Testifies
CINCINNATI, Dec. 1. (P)—The prosecution in George Remus's trial today set about proving that the outbursts of the defendant which nearly a score of witnesses testified indicated insanity were nothing more than fits of anger common to him long before he had heard anything concerning asserted misconduct of the wife he killed.
Willie H. Baer, Savannah, Ga., a former bootlegger, who served a sentence in the Atlanta Federal penitentiary while Remus was there for violating the prohibition law, was in the witness box as a defense witness.
"Didn't Remus get very angry when the prisoners in the Atlanta penitentiary told him that he was a 'rat'?" asked Carl E. Baer, assistant prosecutor, on cross-examination.
REMUS ON FEET
The defense objected strenuously. Charles H. Elston, co-counsel with Remus, asserting that the only purpose of such an interrogation would be to prejudice the jury or cause ill feeling toward Remus.
"We can't simply go on showing these fits simply were mad spells, that they were simply fits of anger, and not insanity at all," Baer told Judge Chester B. Rock. "We want to show that Remus came up about his wife. Remus, who had not been in the penitentiary, bounced to his feet with an attack upon Baer."
"There was not a prisoner down there who was enough, large enough or powerful enough to intimidate a thing like that," Remus roared, his face as red as a tomato.
"If Mr. Baer has any evidence like that let him present it and not try to inject it by conjecture and presumption. You drank pints of whiskey on your eastern trip. You hypocrite, on your eastern trip. You hypocrite, on your eastern trip."
"Nobody paid any attention to Remus's outburst. It was the second time Remus had leaped up and hurled the wholesale liquor-drinking charge at Baer."
"Was that remark made?" Baer calmly asked Remus.
"That remark was made," replied the witness.
"What did Remus do?"
"Remus resented it. He tried to find the men who had made the remark and wanted to fight them," Baer previously had testified that Remus would "fly up" over decisions in prison baseball games and "aved a little" when guards were placed in front of his hotel door in Atlanta while he was out of the prison to testify in the trial of former Warden Elston.
Baer admitted that he had made a deposition for use in Mrs. Remus's divorce suit in which he had described Remus as cursing much, wanting to fight other prisoners, making "all sorts of remarks" and asserting that his wife had seduced him. It was sworn to in 1926.
The divorce case was pending when Remus shot and killed his wife in Eden Park here last October as she was en route to court.
John S. Berger of Los Angeles, calling himself a boyhood friend of Remus, told of the determined effort he made to bring Remus and his wife together and of his final report to Remus that his wife was hopelessly in love with Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., testified Berger.
"I said to Remus, 'Your wife wants nothing to do with you. She is hopelessly in love with Franklin L. Dodge, Jr.," testified Berger.
INSTANTLY ANGERED
"When I reported to Mr. Remus he was the maddest man you ever saw. He raved almost constantly for twenty-four hours. He would not eat, sleep nor take medicine."
"He acted like an insane man."
"I told Mr. Remus that on my second visit to Mrs. Remus she had said that Franklin Dodge would kill him on sight, that she said they had hired gangsters to kill him."
"He tore all his clothes off—collar, shirt, and pulled his coat and went right in two. He took off his shoes and threw them through the window, and I am satisfied he was insane."
"How long did that last?" asked Elston.
"For hours and hours," replied Berger.
Berger was the third talebearer to Remus on the witness stand today. Just preceding him was Orrin T. Webber, Pawpaw (Mich.) farmer, now resident in Chicago.
Mrs. Remus carried four pistols and wanted to "get" him; Mrs. F. mrs gave Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., a high-priced motor car. Remus had the initials of the Remus family changed to correspond with those of Dodge; and Mrs. Remus took Remus's whiskey certificate to Dodge at Leavenworth, Webber testified he talked to Remus.
Dodge, former Federal Department of Justice agent assigned to prohibition work, obtained the conviction of Remus, then known as the "rat" bootlegger. Remus, however, maintains that Mrs. Remus and Dodge then began an association ended only when Remus met her en route to divorce court here and killed her.
John T. Rogers, St. Louis newspaper man, and John B. Marshall of Juneau, Alaska Territory, testified that Remus was insane prior to the slaying of his wife.
Berger's return to Cincinnati today with a request that he be permitted to testify so that he could get back to work, wrecked the defense's plan to clear the way for the appearance of Remus.
Hungary's Door Open to Royalty
BUDAPEST (Hungary) Dec. 1. (P) Agitation in favor of the return of the Hapsburgs to the throne of Hungary is legitimate, Premier Beisla declared in answering a question in the Chamber of Deputies. Agitation for a republic is forbidden, he declared.
The government, he added, while allowing agitation for modification of the existing law excluding the Hapsburgs, forbade the advocacy of force or a coup d'etat with their return in view. He warned that anybody attempting to overthrow the constitution by force will find all the forces of the state arrayed against him.

It will show, according to announcement, how smart wives by careful buying in large quantities may effect a saving of much as $277 a year without the husbands even noticing the difference.

WEDDING OF KING BORIS CANCELED
Pope Refuses to Allow Greek Rites in Marriage to Italian Princess
COBURG (Germany) Dec. 1. (Exclusive)—The engagement plans of King Boris of Bulgaria and Princess Giovanna of Italy have been canceled definitely, the household here of former King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, father of King Boris, learned today.
Pope Pius made the match impossible, it was said. Premier Mussolini of Italy favored such a marriage, because he wanted it to draw Bulgaria into Italy's Balkan orbit, but the Pope refused to permit Princess Giovanna to be married with the rites of the Greek Orthodox Church, to which King Boris belongs, or to permit any children which might be born of such a marriage being baptized in any faith but Roman Catholicism.
The Bulgarian constitution provides that the heir to the throne must be reared in the Greek Orthodox faith, consequently King Boris is back in Sofia explaining the failure of his effort to find a queen.
Three heads of former reigning houses in Germany have reminded King Boris that they have marriageable daughters, but the King doesn't want a German frau.
Lady Astor Joins "Petticoat" Row in British House
LONDON, Dec. 1. (P)—The House of Commons today heard a brief discussion on the relationship between sex and arithmetic, in which Lady Astor participated.
Answering a question, Sir Joynson Hicks said that extension of the franchise to women on the same age basis as men, would give an estimated total electorate of 12,250,000 men, compared with 14,800,000 women.
Pointing to the large excess of women, Frederick Hall exclaimed: "This is petticoat government!"
Lady Astor jumped into the fray with the query, "Does the honorable member think justice has anything to do with sex?"
The Speaker of the House ended the episode by remarking, amid a roar of laughter: "I don't think arithmetic has any sex."
Irrigation Check Sets New Mark
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (Exclusive) Statements have been current in the press about the failure of the reclamation fund to revolve and the impression prevails widely that the construction charges by the water users on the Federal irrigation projects are not being met. This impression, however, is said to be erroneous. Since the passage of the adjustment act payments of the full amounts due the government are the rule and delinquencies the exception. It is said.
An illustration of this is furnished today in the receipt by the Bureau of Reclamation of a check for $108,951.14 from the Salt River Valley Users' Association in payment of one year's construction charges of the Salt River irrigation project, Arizona.
This check is for the largest amount ever received on yearly construction payments in the history of the bureau of reclamation. It makes certain that the payments of construction charges by the water users on the Federal irrigation projects for the fiscal year, 1928, will be greater than in any previous year.
AX CAUSES MUCH WOE
Father Cuts Foot and Son Near Death as Consequence
YREKA, Dec. 1. (P)—James Thompson, farmer near Yreka, and his son, James, Jr., are in the hospital here today, victims of an ax and excitement.
The father cut his foot with an ax. His son rushed him here by automobile to Dr. O. G. Reynolds. While the doctor was attending to the elder Thompson he noticed the boy doubled over in pain.
"What is the matter with you?" the doctor asked.
"I hurt here," replied James, Jr., pointing to his abdomen. Examination revealed that in the excitement of getting his father to the hospital young Thompson burst his appendix. The boy is not expected to live. The father's injury is serious, but he is expected to recover.

COMMITTEE'S INFLUX STARTS
Republicans Gathering for Washington Session
Opinion Divided as to Choice of Convention City
Coolidge Part in Campaign Subject for Conjecture
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (P)—Accorated by the approaching session of the Republican National Committee to select a convention city, politicians today with speculation directed as to where the convention will be conducted and the part to be taken by President Coolidge in next year's campaign.
Professing to see little beyond a wide diversion of opinion, many of the delegates to the committee expressed the hope that the President will give a clearer definition of his Black Hills "Do not choose" statement. It is apparent that many are looking forward to Tuesday when Mr. Coolidge receives the committee at the White House, as an opportunity to relieve the uncertainty which some of them believe is restricting their activities. Others, however, are of the opinion that the President will not elaborate on his position.
The reiteration by Vice-President Dawes at the White House today that he is not a candidate for President and favors Frank O. Lowden serves as a basis for considerable discussion today with various candidates are mentioned, the disposition on the part of many is to keep the field clear so long as Mr. Coolidge is undisputed to clarify his own position.
BUREAU OF MEETING
An speculation about the committee meeting, the main business to be transacted at the meeting beginning Monday—selection of a convention city—is in a definite preliminary stage.
Headquarters for, Detroit were opened in the Willard Hotel where a delegation from Philadelphia already had established a tent. Representatives of San Francisco and other cities seeking the convention are expected to set up headquarters over the week-end.
Although sentiment is said to be far from crystallized, a number of the early comers were of the opinion that a city not more than an overnight trip from Washington should be selected because the delegates may not have adjourned when the convention opens. This sentiment gives the supporters of Detroit, Cleveland and Philadelphia some encouragement but it is pointed out by committee men that San Francisco and Kansas City have many points in their favor, although entailing a longer journey. In all, a dozen cities are after the convention.
CONVENTION DATE
Early discussion also tends to place the date for the convention at about June 12, 1928. As usual, it is expected to be held before the quadrennial meeting of the Democrats.
With the ranks of the incoming committee men rapidly increasing, headquarters of the national committee in the Munsey Building are becoming the center of political activity. Most of the committee men besieged the office of Chairman Butler in the hope that he might throw more light on the position of President Coolidge, but, although the chairman spent last evening at the White House and was close friend of the President, it is said he has little enlightening news to offer.
Mr. Butler did inform them, however, that he saw no reason why the President amplifying his Black Hills statement in his speech to them Tuesday, declaring he expects it to be strictly confined to a discussion of Republican party principles.
One of those most outspoken about what is termed the issue of a clarification by the President is R. C. Cragger, national committeeman for Texas. He says the committee will be hampered by the absence of a more definite statement and adds that all its members favor another and more definite announcement by Mr. Coolidge.

Sensational Grand Stand Methods Scored
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (P)—Quiet, orderly enforcement of the law rather than spectacular efforts in the new policy of the Prohibition Bureau.
High officials of the Treasury have ordered abandonment of dramatic raids with subsequent sensational advertising and have instructed agents to demonstrate their worth by results.
Education of the public against the use of intoxicants is not regarded by Treasury officials as a function for the Prohibition Bureau, which, they believed is only expected to enforce the law.
"Improvement of conditions is what we are trying for," said one official. "We are trying to do what is actually the function of the bureau. If we can enforce the law so the public can see apparent improvement then we are making progress."
CHURCH TAKES SELF TO COOLIDGE'S DOOR
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (P)—A church on wheels, formerly a horse-drawn carriage, was introduced to President Coolidge by Senator Hale of Maine. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford A. Plummer, the latter first deputy secretary of State for Maine and Leavenworth P. Greenwood, said they had preached on route here from Wiscasset, Me. The miniature cathedral is financed, they said, by the Church of the Open Door and is interdenominational.

Foreign-Born Commuters in Rush for Visas

Special Boards of Inquiry to Begin Investigations

DETROIT, Dec. 1. (P)—An augmented force of immigration inspectors inaugurated the new modified alien immigration order here today by barring more than 400 residents of Ontario border cities from entering Detroit to work. The foreign-born commuters affected took steps to obtain nonquota immigration visas from the American Consul in Canada.

Several special boards of inquiry will begin sessions here shortly to consider the cases of those detained. It is announced by John L. Zurich, district director of immigration. Five additional inspectors from Montreal have been summoned.

Approximately 3500 commuters employed in factories in the Detroit district were permitted entrance under the eleventh-hour modification agreed to yesterday by the departments of State and Labor.

The immigration inspectors detained twenty-seven persons for investigation by the special boards of inquiry. Those denied entrance today are quota aliens who had failed to obtain quota immigration visas and native Canadians who failed to obtain nonquota immigration visas.

Tells Court She Mistook His Traffic Whistle for a Filtration

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1. (P)—Explaining that she had been trained from early childhood never to pay attention to any man who whistled at her, Miss Diana Stollmeyer, maid, faced the police court here today on the charge of hindering a left and right blow to the jaw of Patrolman Ackerson last night when he corrected her for jaywalking.

The affair created considerable interest and blocked traffic for half an hour when the policeman received the punches and then called the patrol wagon. Miss Stollmeyer paid a $5 fine for her pugilistic activities.

ISLANDS FIGHT LIMIT ON SUGAR

Filipinos Doubt Americans Will Agree to Plan

Ruin Forecast in Case of Import Restriction

Ban Urged by Cuban and European Growers

MANILA, Dec. 1. (P)—The impression prevailed here today that the United States will not join in any agreement now being suggested among sugar producers of Cuba and Central Europe for restriction of sugar production. Philippine producers further voiced doubt that the United States will be inclined to limit the amount of sugar allowed to enter from the islands duty free.

"I do not believe that the United States will be so unjust as to send goods into the Philippines duty free and at the same time impose a duty or restriction on products from the Philippines," said Venancio T. Fernandez, president of the Filipino Chamber of Commerce. "That would not be free trade, which is one of the principal features of America's policy toward the islands."

RUIN PREDICTED
Fidel Reyes, director of the Insular Bureau of Commerce and Industry, said that while imposition of a duty or other restriction on Philippine sugar would result in ruin of the industry, no more had as yet been made to resist the reported efforts of Cuban and American producers to re-establish restrictions which formerly limited the Philippine imports into the

BET WON BUT HE PAYS DOCTOR

Worker Futs Billiard Ball in His Mouth and Then Has to Get Help

OREGON CITY (Or.) Dec. 1. (P)—After winning a bet of 30 cents that he could place a billiard ball in his mouth, B. Y. Harris, mill worker, had to get a doctor to work two hours last night to extricate the ivory sphere from his jaws. What the doctor charged him is not divulged.

United States to 300,000 tons annually. He declared that during the visit of President Machado of Cuba to Washington some months ago he received advice indicating the American government will in no way join the Cuban plan. Today Reyes reiterated the belief that no restriction will be enacted by the United States, saying previous attempts to accomplish this have failed, not so much because of Philippine opposition, but because of a lack of reciprocity to the plan on the part of American officials.

PRICE RISE SEEN
Reyes declared the price of sugar to the American consumer certainly will rise if the Philippine product is restricted.

Philippine sugar exports to the United States in 1926 amounted to 462,354 tons. It is said that if the duty-free exports to America are restricted to 300,000 tons annually and the Cuban duty of 1.7046 cents a pound is imposed upon the remainder of the Philippine shipments, the annual loss to the island producers, figured with the 1926 transactions as a basis, will be $33,775,867.

Nevada Senator Opposes Federal Control

Problems Facing Coal Men Stressed by Operator

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (P)—Improved methods of extracting minerals economically and scientific research are chief concerns of the government, Secretary Hoover told the American Mining Congress today in disclaiming that the government has any desire to interfere in the conduct of the mining industry.

While America need not become alarmed over the probable exhaustion of its mineral resources, Mr. Hoover said, resources should be properly conserved and wasteful production eliminated. Government surveys show that coal, iron and building material resources will outlast many generations, the congress was told, but in the event of the exhaustion of any one metal science and industry will have provided adequate substitutes.

Senator Oddis of Nevada, chairman of the Senate Mines Committee, told the 150 delegates to the convention, that he is opposed to Federal control of oil production. Such control, he contended, would be unconstitutional. He deplored the small appropriations made for the Bureau of Mines and Geological Survey. Elimination of cut-throat competition and wasteful overproduction by

RARE CHINESE BOOKS IN GIFT

Smithsonian Institution Receives Eighteenth-Century Diary of Oriental Marco Polo

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (Exclusive)—The manuscript diary of an eighteenth century Chinese Marco Polo is one of the rare documents included in a Chinese library just presented to the Smithsonian Institution. The diarist, Tu-li-ch'en, undertook during the years 1712-14 an official journey to Turgut, and he recorded what he saw and did on this mission in a document which extends to six volumes.

The collector of the library in the Chinese government of the day did not wish to be too cordial to the Lama whose visit was something of an embarrassment. The situation was saved and the Lama's good will retained by the employment of the American diplomat, Mr. Rockhill, as go-between.

Mr. Rockhill contributed many works on his pet subject, which was Central Asia. His "Life of the Buddha," derived from Tibetan sources, is the classic work on the subject and his volumes of travels and explorations in Tibet and Mongolia occupy a high place.

In his Chinese library given to the Smithsonian are many rare volumes, probably not found at present in the Congressional library. They will prove of special value in the studies of Central Asian cultures now being carried on by the Sinologists of the Freer Gallery under the Smithsonian Institution.

The Far-East claimed Mr. Rockhill's scholarly interest in early manhood. He became an accomplished linguist, speaking Mongolian, Tibetan, Manchu and Chinese with equal facility. He was one of the few scholars of any race who could converse fluently in their own idiom with the Tibetan Lamas of highest rank. This facility put him at one time in an odd position. It was during the last visit

PICK-UP IN IRON DEMAND NOTED

Signs of First Quarter Pig Business Reported

Large Rail Purchases Also Brighten Outlook

Heavy Finished Steel Trade Still at Low Ebb

CLEVELAND, Dec. 1. (Exclusive) Iron Trade Review this week says: Pig iron demand has expanded to proportions indicating a first-quarter buying movement is under way. Supplementing sales of about 50,000 tons to one consumer in the Pittsburgh district and a total of 40,000 tons by furnace interests at Cleveland is the prospect that automotive foundries in the Detroit district will shortly cover in a substantial manner.

This activity in pig iron, coupled with continued heavy placement of 1928 track material by the railroads, lends further support to the cheerful sentiment prevailing the iron and steel industry.

Expansion of Silk Company Into Allied Products Field Brings Favorable Showing

BY WILLIAM RUSSELL WHITE

[Copyright, 1927, by New York Evening Post, Inc.] NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Alert executives capable of taking drastic action to avert business dangers encountered from changing styles or customs often accomplish the seemingly impossible. When demand for certain silks slackened some time ago, for instance, H. R. Matheson & Co. laid plans for an aggressive expansion in allied products, such as tapestries, velvets and automobile upholstery. Results thus far have far surpassed expectations; the trade has been assured, and revenues from the new lines are expected greatly to increase earnings. Profits from automobile upholstery booked for spring delivery are likely to net a larger return on the common share than for all of this year, the chief executive officer has been quoted as saying. As a result of adoption of the new business policy, the company's cash and inventory position has reached a point never before approached.

Preferred stock of the company, of which all but a little more than 18,000 shares have been retired through sinking fund operations, has developed strength recently in response to the belief dividends would be continued without interruption. Earlier in the year fears had been expressed that the company might be steel industry. It counterbalanced disappointment that the recent rise of 61 per cent in heavy finished steel has not driven in more tonnage and the difficulties of producers in holding steel-making operations at 60 to 65 per cent.

The disparity between lengthening order books for 1928 delivery and the paucity of specifications for current rolling is emphasized by the further decline in pig iron production in November. Daily rate of production in November dropped to 98,610 gross tons, compared with 99,710 tons in October, and 97,923 tons in November. The November total is estimated at 2,638,589 tons, against 2,615,018 tons in October and 2,597,902 tons in November. The ten months' total for 1927, at 25,587,810 tons, compares with 26,011,708 tons in 1926. At the close of November, 173 blast furnaces, or 47.5 per cent of those serviceable, were active. This was a low of one stock.

This week's heavy buying of pig iron will, it is believed, give the market needed impetus. In placing 50,000 tons at Pittsburgh a capacity was secured, doing $17.50, Valley, on No. 2 plain. In addition to the 40,000 tons they have booked Cleveland producers are automotive demand broadening rapidly. Inquiry is mounting at Buffalo and Chicago, where heat iron from the East is offered under the market. A little iron has been sold at Birmingham into the first quarter at $16. The new Everett (Mass.) furnace has set a record by shipping 17,000 tons—its capacity—this month.

Western railroads have closed on 55,000 tons of rails and 25,000 tons of track fastenings. In the rail totals are included 48,800 tons being distributed by the Chicago and Northwestern and 50,000 tons to be bought by the Missouri-Pacific system. The New York Central is inquiring for fastenings for its entire system, including 3,500,000 ties and 40,000 kegs of spikes.

Beef and lamb prices have sunk under the weight of excess supplies resulting from expansion of some contracts. As low as $2.50 has been seen on spot material and the bottom of last week's market—$2.75, now is the top. Byproduct coke is offered at the equivalent of $2.50, Connellville. Beef and lamb prices are also weaker and $2.50 or 10 cents less, can be done.

Pending announcement by the leading steel maker of its first quarter prices, independent mills have taken some forward business at 2.55 to 2.60 cents, Pittsburgh, on black, 2.10

[Copyright, 1927, New York Times Co., Inc.] NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The advance in call money rate to 4-1/4 per cent again at noon today did not come as a surprise inasmuch as a firmer tone had prevailed all morning in the money market. With approximately $500,000,000 in interest and dividends being disbursed overnight, it was only natural that the credit market should experience some slight strain, but the stock market went ahead, more or less secure in the belief that a major portion of the outgo would find its way back into securities.

MADMAN KILLS SELF AS CLIMAX

Negro Chases Mistress from Room to Room

Neighbors Arrive as He Gets Her in Corner

Inquest to be Conducted Into Shooting

Settled with a fit of madness, Richard E. Ewell, 32 years of age, a negro butler, suddenly attacked Mrs. Margaret Pumphrey, 27, wife of Marshall C. Pumphrey, a local store executive, in their home at 6727 Milner road, yesterday, wounded her when he fired a fusillade of shots as she fled screaming from room to room in a desperate effort to escape him, then blew out his brains when neighbors arrived just in time to save Mrs. Pumphrey as she was cornered in an upstairs bedroom.

Ewell, who had been a trusted servant in the Pumphrey home for more than three months, acting as butler and chauffeur, apparently was under the influence of drugs as he suddenly ran amok, according to detectives.

ARREST FOR ORDERS

Mrs. Pumphrey was standing in her bedroom on the entrance floor of her hillside home ready to go downtown, she said, when Ewell came to the doorway, wearing his white serving coat, and asked if there were any further orders. Mrs. Pumphrey said there were none, and receiving no further reply turned toward him. The butler was approaching her, she said, as he came in to escape, when she saw him in his eye, carrying a 45 automatic pistol.

She fled through a bathroom into an adjoining bedroom, where she began to scream, and he broke away, however, and fled through a hallway and down the stairs.

There followed a desperate battle and pursuit through the house with Mrs. Pumphrey fleeing from room to room in an effort to escape, and Ewell shooting at her.

She finally managed to get into a downstairs bedroom and locked the door. The butler fired several shots at an effort to break through, but all of them missed her. She tried to climb through a window to the street, but Ewell heard her and ran out to the window and about to escape, she was attempting to climb in through the window and she died as Ewell fired at her again, one bullet piercing her side but missing the vital organs.

Although wounded, Mrs. Pumphrey opened the door and ran back upstairs to her own bedroom, and Ewell ran in the back door and up after her.

Meanwhile Mrs. Pumphrey's screams had been heard by Mrs. Charles Johnston, a neighbor, who came running to her assistance with her two maids.

They came in the front entrance just as Ewell came up the stairs from a lower floor. He turned and fired several shots at Mrs. Johnston, who ran screaming into the yard. Then seeing that she was alone, he beat and killed her.

Ewell's body was taken to the County Morgue. At the home of Le Roy Bird, 4207 Rogers avenue, where he had lived, it was said that he was an industrious man of good character and habits and never had any previous trouble. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Inez Ewell, living in Kansas City, and a mother, Mrs. Mary Ewell, living at 2239 Masters street, Philadelphia.

The shooting was investigated by

Saved From Horrible Death

Detective Lieutenant Mahoney, who said Ewell probably had been crazed by dope, since it was learned at the home that Ewell had been out the night before and had noted strangely during the morning.

An inquest probably will be conducted to determine the cause of the shooting.

Historical Bell Hung at Resort

The tones of a historic old bronze bell that for centuries called the peasants of Amalfi, Italy, to vespers will shortly ring a nightly curfew at sundown across the Colorado Desert at Palm Springs. The bell, obtained from the romantic little hillside church of Our Lady at Amalfi, Italy, by Vincente Luconesi, is now on the way to Los Angeles. It will be hung in the ninety-foot campanile which is part of the central structure of El Mirado.

According to Signor Luconesi, the legend is that all who hear its notes at nightfall will have their cares of the day swept from their consciousness and replaced by a calm.

Yowlache Goes East for Study

Chief Yowlache, Yakima Indian baritone, accompanied by his wife, Whitebird, and his manager, Clifford M. Cole, left last night on the Santa Fe for New York.

Chief Yowlache will coach for grand opera while in New York under the direction of Pasquale Amato, director of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Senor Amato, while attending a reception in Los Angeles, recently heard Chief Yowlache sing, was greatly impressed and urged him to study in the East.

RED SUSPECT'S TRIAL STARTS

Bush Vagrancy Case Opens in Municipal Court

Defense Attacks References to Client as Communist

Charge Result of Arrest at Union Convention

With defense counsel entering strenuous objection to the use of the term Communist, Ed Bush, asserted radical and Red agent, yesterday went to trial before Municipal Judge Wilson on a vagrancy charge growing out of his arrest at the American Federation of Labor convention here last October.

Frequent objections were made by Attorney Jacob Greenberg, representing Bush, when Detective Lieutenant Hyman of the police intelligence bureau, who arrested the defendant at the union gathering, referred to Bush as a Communist.

DETECTIVE'S TESTIMONY

The detective said he had seen Bush on the streets of Los Angeles since 1922, usually addressing groups on street corners. Bush's fiery orations tended to incite his audience to contempt and ridicule of the government. Hyman answered in reply to questioning of Deputy City Prosecutor Chotiner.

On the day of his arrest in the convention hall on October 6, last, Bush was found to be in possession of Communist literature and attempted to conceal the same. He had once found a membership card in Bush's pocket.

A vagrancy charge was preferred against Bush, Detective Hyman testified, because it was learned the defendant had been employed but four days out of the last seven months.

The witness continued the trial until this morning.

WOMAN HIT BY SPEEDING CAR KILLED

Victim Awaits Identifying; Driver, Said to Have Been Drinking, Arrested

An unidentified woman about 40 years of age and well dressed was killed instantly as she was slung from a street car at Vermont avenue and Eighth street last night. Just as she stepped to the street an automobile, said to have been driven by John Schultz, 30, an employee of the Water Bureau, struck her and hurled her body more than fifty feet, according to witnesses. Efforts are being made by police to learn the identity of the woman, whose body is at the County Morgue.

Schultz and a girl who was riding with him were booked on suspicion of manslaughter. The young woman gave her name as Hope Phillips, 22, a film actress of San Francisco. Another woman, who was riding in the car with Schultz and Phillips, is being sought by detectives.

According to Detective Lieutenants Lyons and Curren of the seventh-division, Schultz confessed that he was driving at between forty and fifty miles an hour as he approached the intersection. He admitted, they say, that he had been drinking.

DIVORCE GRANTED AS WIFE WOULDN'T COOK

COMPLAINANT TELLS COURT HOW HOW SPOUSE DESPISED CULINARY WORK

Instead of taking pride in her culinary skill, his wife despised cooking and would have none of it. Max Meadows testified yesterday in his suit for divorce from Marjane B. Meadows, on the ground of cruelty and desertion.

The case was tried before Superior Judge Sproul, who has been shifted to Department Thirty-six of the Superior Court, while Judge Beecher is conducting the Lieberman funeral home case.

"Is dinner ready?" he asked his wife when he came home one night and found her entertaining girl friends, he testified.

"Of course not. Get it yourself or go out and buy it," was her answer, he said.

Mrs. Kuhn was born in Kiel, Germany, in 1883, and came to this country in 1907. She had lived in Los Angeles fifteen years.

FIGHT CASE DELAY NOW PROSPECT

Dundee Attorney to Ask Continuance Today and Lickley Will Not Oppose

Giving all indications of a postponement of the joint trial of Joe Dundee, Max Waxman and Dick Donald on a charge of false advertising growing out of the Dundee-Hudkins boxing fiasco last month, both prosecution and defense yesterday announced that the case probably will be continued today when it is called in Municipal Judge Blake's court.

Attorney S. B. Hahn, representing Dundee and his manager, Waxman, stated he will ask for a continuance owing to the absence of his clients. Dundee now is in Buffalo, to engage in a bout arranged weeks in advance of the Dundee-Hudkins championship fight, according to Hahn.

A postponement of several weeks will be sought, he said.

"If a motion for continuance is made, what the court will do I will not oppose it," City Prosecutor Lickley stated when asked to comment on the situation.

Prosecutor Lickley said he would not oppose a continuance of the case, but is not known, but is considered likely.

Prosecutor Lickley said he would not oppose a continuance of the case, but is not known, but is considered likely.

Dundee refused to defend his title against Joe Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat, who returned to Los Angeles after he returned to Los Angeles yesterday from a business visit to the capital.

"Of course the best minds of Washington want to see the prohibition law enforced so long as it is law, and most of them want no change in the law as it stands," said Mrs. Clara Shortridge Foltz when she returned to Los Angeles yesterday from a business visit to the capital.

Mrs. Foltz was entertained in Washington at many events which also were attended by her brother, Senator Shortridge.

Sally Long in New York Again

"I Wonder What's Become of Sally?" Out in the Hollywood film colony this once popular song is being revived for Sally Long, erstwhile film actress, who has returned to the city to her old haunts in New York.

This was learned yesterday from her friends who are in the city.

Miss Long for two seasons was one of the most popular actresses on Broadway and left to try her fortune in films. Her friends say she was back to New York with the feeling that she can be more successful on the screen.

In Superior Court here on January 19, 1926, she was awarded an interlocutory decree from Lee B. Tughr, New York stage actor, the final divorce being granted last February.

Officers Named by Mutual Club

The Mutual Club, an organization representing commercial and business interests elected the following officers at an annual meeting in the Biltmore yesterday: Walter Merrick, president; Bruce Conlee, vice-president; Charles Smith, secretary; and Charles Carter, treasurer.

The next high spot in the club activities will be a Christmas celebration for 100 needy children in the music room of the Biltmore at noon, December 22. "We want the truly needy," said the club officers, "and suggestions to that end," said Secretary Lee Carter yesterday.

Highland Avenue Parkway Ordered

The City Attorney was yesterday instructed to start proceedings for the establishment of a parkway in Highland avenue between Milrose avenue and Wilshire Boulevard by a vote of 8 to 5 in the Council. The two roadways both will each be twenty-seven feet wide.

There was a wealth of argument on the matter, but the wishes of the residents of the street eventually were adopted. Property owners, it is understood, wished the parkway to protect themselves from a deluge of dump trucks which pour down out of Cahuenga Pass.

TRIAL BOARD TO QUESTION POLICEMAN

Warrant Officer Delmer Faces Hearing Today on Charge of Overzeal

Charged with exceeding the authority of a police officer, Warrant Officer Harry J. Delmer of the Georgia-street Police Station will go on trial today morning before the police trial board, composed of Capt. Jackson, Sweeney and Shand. Delmer is the first police officer to be charged with exceeding his authority while attempting to serve a traffic warrant since Chief of Police Davis was told by the Police Commission to instruct his officers to the practice of serving petty traffic warrants at a late hour of the night or to cause citizens undue inconvenience during the service of the warrants.

According to the complaint lodged against Delmer and signed by seven citizens, the officer pruned upon Daniel Mainwaring, a newspaper reporter, while the latter was covering a news event for his paper, refused to allow him to telephone to his office, refused to allow him to put up bail, declined to produce his warrant, refused to show his police badge and capped the climax by handcuffing the victim and dragging him away.

The complaint against Delmer also says that the charge against Mainwaring was later dismissed by the court.

CIVIC LEADERS DEDICATE CLUB

Central Industrial District Celebrates Progress

Occasion Marks Opening of Produce Terminal

Laudatory Speeches Made; 400 at Luncheon

Attended by nearly 400 prominent business and industrial leaders of Los Angeles, many of whom have been closely identified with Southern California progress and development, a luncheon dedicating the new home of the Central Manufacturing District Club was given yesterday in the club house at the district office building. The affair, also formally opening the new $1,500,000 unit of the Produce Terminal, was followed by flag-raising exercises.

In a program of short speeches the luncheon guests were told of the immense value of the new enterprise in the Central Manufacturing District as seen from outside points of view. The magnitude of the new Produce Terminal, which, as it stands, is out the first unit of a $3,500,000 institution, was emphasized by two score telegrams from business, financial and railroad heads throughout the nation. These messages all carried the theme of congratulation to the men behind the district plan and the expressed belief that it is one of the greatest forward steps taken in Southern California.

CONGRATULATORY SPEECHES

T. J. Murphy, past president of the club and president of the Federal Cold Storage Company, a large unit of the district, was toastmaster and introduced the speakers. Guy M. Robertson, in charge of arrangements, brought representative of the club and the district to the luncheon in closer contact with the sponsors of the manufacturing district by introducing these men from the floor.

J. Dabney Day, president of the Citizens' National and Citizens' Trust and Savings Bank, gave an interesting talk on the origin of the district plan and its present status from the financial standpoint. His talk was highly laudatory of the enterprise and struck a responsive chord.

Declaring that the Central Manufacturing District and the new Produce Terminal, which, as it stands, is out the first unit of a $3,500,000 institution, was emphasized by two score telegrams from business, financial and railroad heads throughout the nation. These messages all carried the theme of congratulation to the men behind the district plan and the expressed belief that it is one of the greatest forward steps taken in Southern California.

City Councilman Golden and County Supervisor Beatty spoke in high praise of the new industrial institution and expressed a willingness to co-operate at all times in the furtherance of its development.

PRIMARY INDUSTRY

One of the addresses was given by Dr. Elliot Dexter, president of Whittier College, who gave a different view of the value of the new institution by describing it as a primary one which of necessity must lead to secondary concerns, which in turn will lead to other activities and advancement.

Following the guests were taken to the new terminal buildings, where the American flag was raised by a detachment of disabled ex-service men from California. But E. B. Rivers, dean of the produce men in Los Angeles, then closed the ceremonies by raising the house flag of the terminal.

FLORENTINE CHORISTERS ARRIVE HERE

Noted Singers to Appear in Southland Cities Until Next Week

Fifty members of the Florentine Choir arrived in Los Angeles yesterday to fill several engagements in this city and throughout Southern California. Many of the songs which they sing are old, unpublished melodies which will be entirely new to the public and all members of the choir appear in costumes which are authentic reproductions of the costumes of the sixteenth century.

The intersections designated were Vernon avenue at Arlington avenue and Second avenue, and West Forty-eighth street at Arlington and Second avenues.

Telephone Bill Quarrel Leads to Court Fight

Controversy over a 45-cent telephone bill on November 1 last, resulted yesterday in Mrs. J. C. Oldham, called to be the wife of Red Oldham, ball player, appearing before Municipal Judge George Bullock on a battery charge sworn to by Mrs. George Mundie of 2005 West Twenty-eighth street.

Mrs. Mundie testified Mrs. Oldham seized her by the neck, choked her and then knocked her to the floor at the Twentieth-street residence during an argument over a phone bill said to have been incurred by the defendant while residing in the Mundie home.

When Attorney Chindos Bush, representing Mrs. Oldham, announced that at least two more hours will be required to put on the defense, Judge Bullock continued the trial until the 22nd inst. at 10 a.m.

THE THIRD TRIAL OF MRS. CHARLOTTE IRVINE SCOTT ON A CHARGE OF FORGERY ended yesterday in Judge Aggeler's court with the dismissal of a jury that failed to reach an agreement after more than twenty-five hours of deliberation.

The case is scheduled to come before Judge Hardy again this morning when it will be determined whether Mrs. Scott will be prosecuted for a fourth time or cleared of the charge.

Mrs. Scott is accused of having forged the indorsement of W. F. Scott, her former husband, to a check issued in his favor for $45.

She was tried twice on the charge before the case came before Judge Aggeler, a new trial being ordered in one instance and a disbursement of the jury resulting in the conclusion of the other trial.

It was reported, the jury stood eleven to one for acquittal in the latest trial.

THE HOOVER FACTOR
The annual report of the Secretary of Commerce to the President, made public today, fails to mention, as a factor in the astounding national prosperity which the report reveals, the part which the Department of Commerce has played under Secretary Hoover. This part of the story can only be read between the lines, but there it is, plain as print.

Take, for example, the section of the report under the heading, "Elimination of Wastes." Here we learn that through suggestions made by the Department of Commerce during the fiscal year which ended July 1, last, and the co-operation of producers which the department has obtained, there have been twenty-eight major saving devices put into effect. Just one of the twenty-eight, described as "simplified practice activities," is sufficient in itself to account for savings that in the aggregate are tremendous. In ten items mentioned in the report, reductions ranging from 95 to 9 per cent have been made in the number of varieties produced, enabling manufacturers to dispense with much surplus machinery and concentrate on mass production of standard varieties under the most favorable conditions.

Solid section steel, for example, formerly was produced in 45,777 varieties and grades; the department has succeeded in eliminating 40,535 of them by discovering that a selection from 2344 varieties and grades is sufficient to satisfy the most exacting purchaser. Hospital and institutional textiles formerly were made in 575 different ways; the number has been reduced to twenty-six. Lumber stock for wire-bound boxes formerly was cut into 163 different lengths; the Department of Commerce found that all requirements could be answered with six different lengths and got the mill men to agree to produce them only—a reduction of 94 per cent. In staple vitreous plumbing fixtures, styles were reduced from 441 to fifty-eight. There used to be thirty-five varieties of salt containers; the number has been reduced to thirteen and found ample. Only 356 varieties of metallic cartridges are now produced; formerly there were 345 varieties. The number of shapes of porcelain electric insulators has been cut from 273 to 343.

Up to the beginning of the fiscal year, the report says, 2775 individual firms had accepted the recommendations of the department for simplified practice; during the year this number was increased to 4676, an increase of 140 per cent. Sales of the printed recommendations of the department were 250,000 during the year.

Examination of the other twenty-seven items of the report under the heading, "Elimination of Wastes," discloses other reasons why the Department of Commerce under Secretary Hoover has grown in importance by leaps and bounds. An experimental paper mill operated by the department, for instance, increased by three months the average life of paper money; the automotive research department made savings to the public in fuel, brake lining and tires; another department perfected an echo-sounding machine for measurement of water depths and speeded up marine surveying greatly.

The whole report is a similar antidote for pessimism, and bears out the measured words of the introductory paragraph, which read:

"The fiscal year ended July 1 continued the economic progress which has not been characteristic of American industry for six years. It exceeded all previous records in volume of production and consumption and in the physical quantity of exports and imports. There was very little unemployment, except during a moderate recession near the end of the year, and the rate of real wages remained higher than anywhere else in the world or than at any other time in the world's history. The high prosperity of the year did not represent merely an upward swing in the business cycle, but was the result of that general and permanent progress the extent and causes of which are magnified in the latter section of the report. There were, to be sure, a few aspects of American business which were less satisfactory, as, for example, the coal and textile industries, the relatively low price of cotton with its depressing effect upon the farmers of large regions of the South, and some continued depression in agriculture in the Mid-West, although improvement is taking place since the fiscal year in both sections."

It would be too much, of course, to claim for the Department of Commerce the major part of the progress made by American industry. Manufacturers and other producers have made for themselves amazing discoveries in the past few years, which have enabled them to increase production, lower prices, raise wages and shorten the hours of labor. But the Hoover factor has been a large one, and his co-ordinating genius has accomplished, without doubt, greater beneficial changes in American industry than were ever before accomplished by one man in the same space of time.

THE SOVIET GESTURE
The Soviet proposal before the League of Nations at Geneva, for the abolition of navies, armies and all war material and abandonment of all war preparations whether for offense or defense, would be entitled to more respectful consideration if the reputation of the Soviet government for good faith was better established. There have been indications that, under Stalin, Russia is more likely to observe an international agreement than under Lenin. But the new policy, if indeed there is one, has not yet convinced anybody that Russian words are yet to be taken at their face value. The Chervetka may be up to par, but the memory of the ruble clings.

The League has postponed discussion of the Russian plan until its spring meeting, which probably is just as well. In the meantime it will consider some less general and more practical proposals, which, though not settling everything at once and for all time, may be better adapted to an imperfect world.

Every sane person would like to see total disarmament, but talk of securing it, as it were, overnight, is idle. The whole world is not assembled at Geneva and could not be brought there. Obviously nobody can afford to disarm unless everybody else does. There is China, for instance: a tremendous population without a responsible government, unable to make a binding agreement with anybody; how would Litvinov, who voiced the Russian proposal, go about disarming China? The score or more of independent military commanders there would be unlikely to accede to any such request, and to attempt to force disarmament upon them would be a hazardous proceeding. Yet China in her present state would be a menace to the peace of a disarmed world.

STILL HANGS ON
The States of Iowa, Vermont, Minnesota, Montana and North Carolina have all abandoned the Presidential primary after more or less trial. In Texas and Alabama the law is in doubt. Thirty-eight States, however, still cling to the practice of the primary election in some form although its popularity is waning. Instead of being simple and inexpensive as was promised in the first place it has been found costly and cumbersome.

NO SO FOXY
A surprise may await that hobo who, looking for something soft, says he is on his way to Detroit to hunt for a job as horsebooster. In none of our large cities can one count upon horses being quite as scarce as corsets.

RACING SINGER
John McCormack is reported to have bought some speedy horses which he will race next summer when he isn't singing. Well, that's one means of dropping dough and keeping the tenor of one's way.

The Lee Side of L.A. by Lee Shippey

WHEN official statistics of two city departments, with office in the same building, flatly contradict each other, what can one think?

The figures Dr. George Parrish, health officer, and Fred Marienthal, in charge of the traffic violations bureau, give out concerning the general health of Los Angeles are startlingly far apart.

Dr. Parrish's official report, which hasn't been published for lack of funds, is very reassuring. The death rate in Los Angeles is only 15.55 per 1000 of population, as against 15.13 in Baltimore, 13.59 in Buffalo, N. Y., and 11.59 in San Francisco, the only big cities from which official reports have been received so far. And the death rate among infants, generally recognized as a barometer of general health conditions, is only 59.7 per 1000 here, against 66.5 in Chicago, 85 in Detroit, 67.4 in New York City, 77.3 in Philadelphia, and so on—lower than that of any other big city. And since last February there has not been a single patient in the city's smallest hospital, a record of which we will say no more.

But if you don't want to tremble with dread that our city is teeming with illness and dangerous disease, keep away from the traffic violations bureau. "Fully 90 per cent of the people who come in here to explain why they were driving at illegal speed assure us they were hastening to the bedside of some stricken dear one," Marienthal says. "Their babies are taken suddenly ill, they receive wholly unexpected telephone calls that their dear wives are likely to breathe their last before they get home unless they hurry, and even the first baseball game of the season doesn't result in half the fatalities among grandpas—or, at least, threatened fatalities—that a bright sunny Sunday does. It looks as if fully half the speedy cabs in town were owned by folks with a lot of very sickly relatives."

New Kind of Bootleggers
"It's resulting in a brand new kind of bootlegging profession among the sort of doctors who write bogus prescriptions," Marienthal continued. "Already we have suspicions that there are a few doctors who will sign certificates of ill-health to help speeders get away from us. But if people only knew it, the surest way to make us look on them with disfavor is to spring the dying relative alibi. The only people I really make sick are us. We hear it so often that it not only makes us sick but suspicious."

Forests of Family Trees
Whether or not we are descended from monkeys, most of us seem to feel we must have a family tree to climb on, and that has resulted in an odd profession. At least five persons here earn good livings as professional genealogists. And Miss Clara M. Rowell, in charge of the genealogy and heraldry section of the Public Library, who is one of them, says that all appear to be steadily employed.

Seek Family Fortunes
Their patrons are not all folks who want to prove eligibility to membership in the Daughters of the American Revolution or the Mayflower Society, but include many persons trying to prove relationship to people of wealth. When the famous Hetty Green died, for example, Miss Rowell's days and nights were so overrun by Greens that she still can hardly look asleep in the face without a shudder. But she succeeded in establishing the relationship of some of them to "America's richest woman."

Many Leaves
There are many leaves to the forest of family trees, as well as many queer branches. In the genealogy section of the Public Library there are 7000 volumes which aid in such research and add other items to the main library which sometimes are consulted. Fifty persons daily, on the average, visit this department to look up family trees, and mail requests for information have come in from as far away as Florida.

Swift Growth
Now that the towers of the Public Library and the new City Hall rise so commandingly above the city, the attention of visitors is called more than ever to our twelve-story height limit, and many inquiring glances are cast at the Baker-Detweiler Building on the south side of Pershing Square, which rises to fourteen stories, the only exception to the general rule.

No other building gives more striking evidence of the marvelous growth of Los Angeles. The Baker-Detweiler Building was erected in 1914 and created a great stir at that time, although buildings ranging from sixteen to twenty stories already were common in many cities now ranking far behind Los Angeles, and the fifty-one-story Woolworth Building in New York had been erected in 1913-14. But Los Angeles was not yet the sort of city in which there was any real need for skyscrapers.

Saved the City, Maybe
So probably the Baker-Detweiler Building saved the city from being just one more big American city in which a lot of huge skyscrapers snag-tooth the skyline. The discussion over it indirectly resulted in the present twelve-story height limit, and now Los Angeles is a city in which the view of such beautiful things as the City Hall tower and the library tower is less obstructed than in most cities. Our streets are not turned into grand canyons in which the sun rarely penetrates, and probably never will be. Paris has done very well as a city, thought its height limit is only eight stories, with the result that its more imposing public buildings and monuments can be seen from almost anywhere.

THE FOOD OF AMBITION
By James J. Montague
"I am going to Vermont to whittle"—President Coolidge
I always was taught that to whittle was to wastefully squander one's time—that one never could rise, in that frittering waste.
The whittlers that lived in my village from toll seemed eternally free—yet my parents would say in a horrified way they were not good examples for me.

If at Christmas I wanted a jack-knife My father's grave visage grew and "You ruin your life," he observed, "with a knife."
Learn something that's useful, my lad. So he bought me a saw and a saw buck. And instead of luxurious ease In fashioning chips into models of ships I made cords of fuel from trees.

I afterward worked for the grocer Till the school days began in the fall. And when life I began as an earnest young man I had not learned to whittle at all. I missed all those glad happy hours When, with two-bladed knife in my hand, I might have had time to begin the long climb To the loftiest place in the land.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES

[Name and address of writer must accompany all letters for this column. Letters of a personal nature or involving controversial religious questions are not acceptable.]

The California Spirit
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—[To the Editor of The Times:] We who live in California, and especially in Southern California, should in some practical way endeavor to demonstrate to ourselves, to all with whom we come in contact and to the world in general our appreciation of the great and glorious privilege of dwelling within the borders of this wonderful State, and we can do so by being courteous to all and by manifesting good will and justice toward all in all of our thoughts and acts day by day. When we do this we help ourselves, we help others and we help the city, State and country in which we live, and those of us who have lived here so long that we have forgotten all about appreciating the many good things which are found here and about alone, should give this matter the consideration it so richly deserves, and come forth each morning filled with the joy of life and the desire to demonstrate our appreciation of the joy by doing something toward the uplifting of mankind.

There is no thought or act which comes from an appreciative and joy-filled heart but it ever so small which helps in the general uplifting of our race. A hearty good-morning, a courteous reply, a kindly directing or helping a stranger; even these little manifestations of kindness and good will receive their reward, for there is never a good thought or deed so small that it passes on to the great eternal storehouse of goodness unnoticed. Therefore, let us forgive and forget that which hinders us in our effort to manifest cheerfulness and charity toward all, and ever look out upon all life irrespective of race, color or creed as though we stood at the threshold of the glorious and eternal world which has no ending.

TITUS G. FARR.
"Doctors Please Notice"
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Your columns have of late had some letters commenting on the extravagance of some of the city departments, but we certainly must have an economical health department, for at the meeting held before the Health and Sanitation Committee today, on the subject of an ordinance requiring all handlers of food products to be examined, our city health officer, Dr. Parrish, supported by the chairman of the Health Commission, Mr. Pontius, stated that he could give any person a thorough examination for 50 cents, that the average doctor would charge $15.00, and that it would only take his department about ten minutes to give this thorough examination.

I am not in the practice, but from an economic viewpoint, I think every citizen of Los Angeles should take one of these examinations, and as Dr. Parrish can pass them out so rapidly, I don't suppose will call upon the city for any additional funds, as he stated that his laboratory department could handle a good deal more business without any increased overhead. Why should we pay our doctor $15 when our municipal health department can give it for 50 cents? I never was sold on municipal ownership, but maybe there is something in it after all. Now if we can only get our legal department to handle our criminal and civil cases on the same basis, Southern California, with its wonderful climate and other advantages would be a Utopia.

Barking Dogs
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 1.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am one of the thousands of tourists who come every winter to Los Angeles.
I am somewhat bewildered in trying to understand the cause for the mental complex which affects many Los Angeles people when they keep vicious dogs on exhibit. If one walks anywhere in the neighborhood of Manhattan on First Street or St. Andrews (south) he or she will meet a dozen dogs who come out on the lawn barking at men, women or children.

"CHICAGO"
BEAUTY
There is beauty on the mountains when the dawn begins to appear; There's a charm about the lowlands when the birds begin to sing; There is glory in the forest with the moonlight on the trees, And a wonderful enchantment about rivers, lakes and seas. There's a mystic fascination in the wind-swept clouds on high, And a promise of tomorrow flashes from the sunset sky. Yet the glories seen in nature are but symbols of the light That descends upon the sleeper in the silence of the night.

There is beauty on the landscape when the dawn leaps through the dark; There's a hint of heaven's music in the singing of the lark; There's a wealth of inspiration in the desert, stretching far, And the heart is moved to worship by the eastern morning star. Joyously I watch the pictures on the screen of time unroll; Morning, noon and holy twilight bring their harvest to my soul—But the wonders of creation melt like snowflakes on the stream When the soft light of the spirit glorifies the hills of dream.

QUESTION REVISED
A plain-spoken clubman said to a fellow member, "How many fools do you suppose are in this club besides yourself?"
"Besides myself?" replied the other, half-inclined to be angry. "I must say I like that."
"Well, then, how many do you reckon including yourself?" Boston Transcript.

NOT SATISFIED
An old colored man was sent to the hospital and one of the nurses put a thermometer in his mouth to take his temperature. Presently, when the doctor made his rounds, he said: "Well, Moore, have you had any nourishment?"
"A lady done gimme a piece of glass to suck, boss, but I'm still powerful hungry."—[Exchange.]

PARIS FLOWER SHOW

BY EVELYN McDOWELL

Cours la Reine, which opened its gates so hospitably to the American Legion during its Paris convention not many weeks ago, was recently the scene of an entirely different kind of gathering. The autumn exposition of horticulture was in full possession of the premises.

Of course the chrysanthemum was queen of the show. I think I have never seen so many huge blossoms, even in California. There were shaggy ones with long petals falling in careless disarray, and tiny ones with petals neatly arranged and curling toward the center. Some of the plants in tubs were trimmed and trained into cones and pyramids. From both sides of a little meandering stream rose gently sloping high banks of massed blooms in harmoniously blended shades.

Dahlias also held an important place. They, too, grew to great size here, and very few had the soft, delicate petals of the ones I saw in California. One big shaggy fellow bore the name "Biskayon." Odd to find the name of one of our northernmost California counties attached to a flower in Paris! In color they ranged from white, through shades of lavender that was almost blue.

The begonia attracted much attention. Very large, some of them frilled and ruffled and fringed, and some of them with petals of yellow and white. The soil of France must be especially friendly to begonias, for in many unpretentious private gardens I have seen beds of handsome blossoms. Low-growing gladioli raised modestly their broad trumpets of velvet in all the rich shades of dark red and purple. Cyclamens, too, were large and lovely—coral and white and red and white. The last-named called vividly to mind a patch of wild white cyclamens growing in a moist shady spot on the north slope of Idaho, which I had come upon unexpectedly one summer day several years ago while on a hike. Of course, these were not very many, nor were they especially noteworthy. This is the resting season of the roses.

The orchid house contained nothing unusual except, perhaps, one plant with very deep purplish-blossoms, almost crimson. The little yellow flowers looked like autumn leaves, and the long-stemmed flat white ones reminded me of branches of green hollyhocks. At the other extreme were cactus plants from Mexico, most of them of dwarf varieties, showing no blossoms. One would expect to find here cactus from France's African colonies, rather than from America.

Just across the aisle from some of the most aristocratic blossoms were members of humble vegetable families. Yet even these lowly legumes were decked in the best—cabbages of green and purple, ruffled and fluted; big rosettes of endive and scarlet; chubby lettuce; rosy radishes of many shapes and sizes; huge sugar beets; deep-orange carrots and enormous flat pumpkins—most of them carefully arranged in varied geometrical patterns. Leafless trees were festooned with little orange and green gourds like tiny lanterns lighted for a garden party.

The fruit section displayed large and fine-looking specimens. I have rarely seen such immense pears. Many of the apples, too, were of great size and beauty. Here and there one often sees them in the windows of Parisian dealers in fine fruits, were apples with white ribbons in various patterns printed on their rosy cheeks. Grapes of unusual size and in enormous clusters were displayed on tables. Others hung from trellises where their green and crimson foliage set them off to advantage. Preserved fruits and vegetables put up in glass jars were also on exhibit. One enterprising firm had placed some of its jars of preserved fruit on the floor of an aquarium, perhaps to prove to the goldfish that the jars were air and water tight.

Outside of the building were grouped fascinating little garden houses, with steep thatched roofs, and window boxes full of flowering plants, and interiors furnished so attractively with simple wicker furniture, easy chairs, and shelves full of books, that we longed to move right in and live there for a while.

Bees were busy at work in a glass hive, doing their duty in spite of the throngs of spectators, with their honey on display near at hand, somewhat resembling pale soft maple sugar. I have yet to see any clear extracted honey on sale in Paris.

Trellised fruit trees, used so extensively in Europe in order to economize space and present the greatest possible surface to the sun, were shown in great variety of shapes.

But, attractive as it was, I missed in this exhibition the citrus fruits and the palms and luxuriant ferns which contribute so much to the beauty of our Southern California garden shows.

Just as he had figured it, the driver picked him up, and finding a card marked "Take me to this address in case of accident," started off in that direction. FINE IMPOSED FOR MEDDLING

Court Finds Angeleno Guilty of Contempt

Interference in Small Claims Action Charged

Suspect Taken in Custody on Bench Warrant

Taken into court on a bench warrant issued by Municipal Judge E. S. Franklin of 330 West Fourth street yesterday was a man for contempt of court because of alleged interference with the progress of law.

Franklin's name first was mentioned in the small-claims action of Mrs. J. E. Christensen against Mrs. Tedlock of 130 West Sixty-sixth street for $5 damages. When the plaintiff, Mrs. Christensen, failed to appear at the assigned hour, Judge E. S. Tedlock then related that Mrs. Christensen had come to her house, representing herself as a deputy sheriff and said she had better pay him the money she wished to spend five times that amount in court.

Judge E. S. Tedlock immediately issued a bench warrant for Mrs. Christensen and dispatched his clerk, Carvel Smith, to bring her into court.

The magistrate found, Franklin, on the basis of the evidence, that Mrs. Christensen had been in the alternative of five days in the city jail. He paid the fine.

After Mrs. Tedlock explained that the plaintiff gave her the $5 as a deposit on a house, Judge E. S. Tedlock rendered judgment in favor of Mrs. Tedlock.

Franklin is related to Mrs. Christensen, it was revealed by testimony.

DIVORCE WON FROM WIFE WHO LOST HOPE ONE HOUR TOO SOON

Agnes Fisher walked out of the picture just about one hour too soon, as William I. Fisher told the tale in Judge Brown's court yesterday.

Things had been going badly, Fisher admitted. The grocery bill was overdue, two or three installments on the house and the furniture were unpaid, and the car was about to be repossessed. So it was a blue outlook Fisher faced as he sat in his office that morning. The only bright spot in the whole situation was the way his wife was standing by him, he said.

And then the phone rang. Fisher heard a few words, leaped up, grabbed his hat and rushed out to the car that was in such jeopardy. On the way home he paid no attention to speed laws.

"Agnes," he shouted as he burst in. "The big deal's gone through. Everything is O.K."

But no one answered him. He looked through the house. On a table was a note.

"Dear Bill," it read, "you can't say I did not give you a chance to make good. But this simply is slow starvation and I can't stand it any longer. I have found a job. Here is a list of all the debts."

"Judge, it floored me," Fisher said. "I did not even look for her. I did not have the heart to do so."

Fisher was granted a divorce. The couple had been married eighteen years.

NIGHT DIRECTOR FOR KHJ NAMED

Glenn R. Dolberg Has Long Radio Experience

Northern Stations Give Good DX Program Tonight

Elaborate Concert Offered on Orange Network

BY DR. RALPH L. POWER
Organizing an executive staff on an entirely new plan for a radio station, Don Lee, California distributor for Cadillac and LaSalle motor cars, who recently took over the ownership and operation of KHJ, the oldest newspaper-broadcasting station in Los Angeles, has just announced the appointment of Glenn R. Dolberg as night director.

Dolberg, who is well-known as a winner of the barton section of the California Hottelstet for all of California, has been identified with radio work on the Pacific Coast for some time, having been manager of KKK at Portland, Ore., before coming to Los Angeles. As night director, Dolberg will have charge of all activities at KHJ in the evening hours. The day-time director of the station, whose appointment was announced first, is E. K. Barnes, a veteran in the radio field in Los Angeles.

Since the evening program over KHJ will be in the form of musical treats, Dolberg's experience is considered of value to the station from the standpoint of the listener. Starting his musical education in Minneapolis, Minn., in 1914, Dolberg was forced to drop his studies when he enlisted in the Sixth Cavalry of the Army and served two years overseas. As a member of the army band he appeared as a soloist in France and England and had the honor of being baton leader in the Concert Militaire in the Paris grand opera house and the Casino de Monte Carlo.

He also appeared in concert at opera in Venezuela.

RAINFALL SPEAK
"The Effect of Modern Machinery on Morality" is the subject of a lecture to be given by Rabbi E. F. Maginn this evening at Temple B'nai B'rith. At the Temple service at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow Dr. Maginn will discuss "The Place of the Synagogue in Modern Life."

GOOD DX PROGRAMS
Most of the local radio studios tonight have excellent programs. But Friday night always seems to be a good night for good DX programs also.

If you dial to Southern California stations until perhaps 10 o'clock, then try some of the Pacific Northwest stations until midnight.

For the half-hour commencing at 10 p.m., KFOA, Seattle, is billing a funny act. Then Shirlene Sam and Petunia, the scrub women, will offer a blackface comedy.

At 10:30 KGW of Portland will be on the air for an hour and a half of the weekly frolic meeting of the Keeping Order Order of How Owls, a radio run and frolic act that never seems to grow old despite its antiquated primitive presentation for some four years.

The Seattle station, KOMO, will have an hour dance music program between 11 and midnight by Herb Wiedt and his recording orchestra, an organization already well-known in and around Los Angeles.

ELABORATE CONCERT
One of the most elaborate radio hours announced for the month will be staged between 8 and 9 tonight over the orange network with KFI, the southern station. As the red and blue networks will carry a similar broadcast to eastern stations on another hour this evening, the program will cover practically the entire country.

This will be the first in a series of "Wrigley hours" to be given on Friday nights and is announced as a super-novelty show with orchestra for a twenty-five piece group, a male quartet, the comedy trio, and instrumental and vocal soloists.

The numbers will range all the way from the "Wrigley Ragtime" and an orchestral number, "Abdul-A bulbul," a minor solo with guitar accompaniment, and from the "Beverly Drill" to "The Variety Drag."

STUDIO TO TELL ABOUT NEW FORD CAR
At 7:30 tonight KFI will broadcast an exclusive and authoritative story on the new Ford car. The story will be given in a series of three half-hour programs. The second is scheduled at the same time tomorrow night and again on Sunday evening.

Girl Runs Away When Scolded by School-Teacher

Fearing the anger of her parents because her teacher had written a note telling of her misbehavior, a girl, 14 years of age, fled from the schoolhouse and disappeared Wednesday afternoon, according to the girl's mother, who reported the matter to Sheriff Trager yesterday.

Mrs. Nana Warren, 2247 Looka street, told officers she first learned of her child's disappearance when she failed to return from school. Getting in touch with Principal Harriet Harrah, Mrs. Warren was told the girl had been reprimanded for talking to a chauffeur who stopped at the school grounds. The principal also said she had written a letter to the girl's parents informing them of the case and when Mrs. Warren learned of this she left the school building.

The girl is described as 14 years of age, weighs 100 pounds, height five feet, eyes brown, medium build; nationality Italian, complexion light. She wears tennis shoes, a short orange dress, tag silk stockings, and did not have a hat.

On resolution by Councilman Hall the Council yesterday approved steps for an appropriation of $15,000 from city funds to be expended during the coming session of the Spring-Johnson bill for development of the Colorado River. Actual appropriation of the sum will be referred to the Mayor and Finance Committee.

The money for the lobby will be appropriated from time to time. As present there is a request before the Mayor for $2500 to pay the cost of printing 25,000 booklets to be used as part of the Spring-Johnson propaganda.

Bishop Parsons was an official delegate to the conference on religion conducted at Lausanne, Switzerland.

Deloitte Corporation Ledgers to be Studied

Formal Hearing to be Held This Morning

All the books, stock ledgers and company papers of the California corporation of the Deloitte Air Springs Company, Inc., as well as a part of the records of the Delaware corporation of the same name, are in the hands of the auditors of Corporation Commissioner Freidlander, according to an official announcement yesterday.

An investigation of the records of the corporation is being made by the direction of Chief Auditor Freidlander, in an effort to arrive at a decision for complaints that have been received from purchasers of stock in several cities, who charge in their suits on file that they have been defrauded by the corporation.

A formal hearing will be conducted this morning at 10 o'clock when Freidlander will be asked to give a brief statement of the history of his plan to acquire a patented air spring and the operation in Delaware, California and other States of the corporation. Freidlander's official statement is being prepared by the corporation's legal counsel.

Additional records are yet to be turned over to the commission by Deloitte, according to investigators which will complete the Delaware and California information required.

It was intimated by members of the auditor's staff that several days ago Freidlander was required to make a complete check of all books and papers on hand.

Liquor Believed Stored by "Mile-Away" Thomas

The name of Mile-Away Thomas, believed shot and killed by the police during a raid, entered the discussion of Mrs. Julia Blanche Roberts against Archie Allen Roberts in Superior Judge Ambrose's court yesterday.

In response to questions by the court, Mrs. Roberts admitted that as many as sixty-five cases of liquor had been stored in their garage at 1011 S. Main. Asked whether it did not seem to her that Thomas said she did not know, she said he-jackers had loaned the cash and some of it was used to buy a drink in the home by subsequent, for which she received $50 as custodian.

Questions about the liquor following testimony brought by Attorney Dan Laubersheimer, for the plaintiff, that Roberts repeatedly had been investigated.

Both sides custody of a young daughter. The case was continued until the 19th inst.

FORD SHOW WILL AVOID FORMALITY

Manager Says Soliciting Will Not be Permitted at Ambassador Salon

Formalities will be dispensed with at the initial showing of the new Ford model at the Ambassador auditorium today, according to Joseph W. Capek, vice-president and general manager of the Ford interests for Southern California.

There will be a private showing of the new car from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. to which city and county officials, eighty Ford dealers in the metropolitan area, bankers, well-known citizens and newspaper men have been invited, and at 10 a.m. the doors will be thrown open to the general public.

"No sales orders will be taken, no soliciting will be permitted, and all Ford dealers in the metropolitan area or make deposits will be asked to see their nearest authorized Ford dealer," Mr. Capek stated.

The new model arrived in Los Angeles yesterday and were taken almost direct to the showroom. Models to be shown include the Tudor sedan, sport coupe, roadster, phaeton, chassis and truck. A band will play during the show hours, while motion pictures, showing the manufacture of the car will be offered. If public interest demands the show will continue to midnight Friday and possibly Saturday, Mr. Capek said. Coinciding with the show here the models are being displayed today in Santa Barbara, Bakersfield, San Diego, Riverside and in Flagstaff, Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz., all points in the territory under the supervision of Mr. Capek.

LOCAL BAR TO IGNORE MINISTERS

Officials Regard Incident of Variel Wet Charges as Closed Finally

Both H. F. Variel, secretary of the Los Angeles Bar Association, and the organization's trustees will ignore the Ministerial Association's demand for statements from them regarding Variel's alleged accusations against Federal and Superior judges and attorneys on the prohibition question, it was learned yesterday from Variel and Kemper H. Campbell, president of the lawyers' body.

The trustees met in regular session yesterday, the first since the ministers made their demand.

"We gave it no consideration," Campbell said, "that is, no formal consideration. It came up informally and the trustees approved of what I said and that was all there was to it."

Campbell referred to a brief public statement he made on the day following the ministers' action in which he defended the bar.

Variel said he will have no statement in response to the ministers' demand that "the either name the Superior Court judges and the Federal judges whom he accuses or else retract his statement."

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By Myrtle Meger Eldred

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

HICCUPS

In answer to Mrs. H. The hiccups, which are common to young babies, are a simple reflex which happens when the baby is overfull; or perhaps because he swallows up some of his food, and swallows it back, and the consequent irritation causes him to hiccup. Most babies do this almost every day. It can be stopped in most cases, by changing their positions and giving them a drink of plain water. Severe hiccups lasting for long periods should be reported to a physician. But even a very young and inexperienced mother might be able to detect when hiccups are causing the well baby no discomfort and are of no serious consequence.

CONSTIPATION

Mrs. A. H. W. writes: "I read your column the other night. My boy of 3 months weighs over thirteen pounds. He has never had a natural bowel movement. Sometimes I use a suppository and sometimes a laxative which often makes him fussy and often does no good. He is happy and contented but bothered with gas. I suppose this would improve if he had better elimination."

"Could I give a complementary feeding after the 5 o'clock nursing? He is often asleep at his 8 o'clock nursing but wakes up several times after 10 or 11. What causes this?"

Answer: There is always a possibility that constipation is caused by too little food, which results in so small an amount of residue that the bowels are not stimulated. Since you did not tell me the baby's birth weight I cannot judge if he has made the regulation gain, even though his present weight is above average. Sometimes constipation is caused by sluggish reflexes. I think the suppository better for this condition than laxatives. There are so many possible reasons that it would take more than this column to even suggest them. We have a leaflet on constipation.

Mineral oil, mixed with his morning orange juice, is very effective after the first three days. It is a mechanical lubricant, not a laxative.

The restlessness may be due to an inadequate 5 o'clock or 8 o'clock nursing. Try a complementary bottle after this last feeding, one ounce of milk, the same of water and one-fourth teaspoonful of sugar is a good standard formula for a beginning.

This matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

'TIMES' AGAIN OFFERS CUP TO EDITORS

Trophy Given Newspaper in State That Presents Best First Page

Encouraging improvement of the typographical and editorial excellence of California newspapers, the Los Angeles Times again offers a silver cup to the weekly or semi-weekly newspaper member of the California Newspaper Publishers' Association, which enters the best first page in the association's annual contest. The contest will be held in connection with the thirty-ninth annual meeting of the newspaper association to be held here January 20 and 21. Pages entered in the contest will be on display during the meeting.

This is the third year that the Times Cup has been offered. Two years ago the Pacific Journal was the coveted trophy. Last year it went to the Sierra Madre News. Interest in the contest is keen among the newspaper publishers and a large number of entries is expected. The contest is decided on typographical appearance, choice of material and manner in which material is handled. Plans are under way to make the association meetings the outstanding newspaper gathering of the Pacific Coast, according to Ben H. Reed, executive secretary of the organization. Business topics dealing with publication of newspapers will fill the program.

Protestant Welfare Association Will Build Home for Inmates at Girard

A campaign to raise $250,000 in Los Angeles county for the construction of a home for the inmates of Pacific Lodge will begin January 1, according to an announcement made yesterday by Dr. Charles F. Nelson at the Church Brotherhood luncheon at the Young Men's Christian Association.

Dr. Nelson, vice-president of the Protestant Welfare Association, under the auspices of which Pacific Lodge is operated, said that more than 400 boys, most of whom came from the Juvenile Court, have been given schooling, recreation and employment at the lodge at Pomona within the last four years.

"The grounds and buildings at Pomona were leased from the State, but we have been informed that by the first of the new year the State will require the place as a sanatorium for the cure of drug addicts," said Dr. Nelson. "Through the generosity of the association meetings the outstanding newspaper gathering of the Pacific Coast, according to Ben H. Reed, executive secretary of the organization. Business topics dealing with publication of newspapers will fill the program."

Shaw, who gave his address as 310 Westbourne Drive, is accused of failing to return $25.35 collected from Eddie Olsen for A. C. Stover of Tujunga.

SKELETON CLEW TO MISSING PAIRWhitened Bones Found on Beach Start Quiz*Believed Those of Local Man Lost on Trip*Detectives Go to Scene of La Jolla Mystery

Whitened bones of a human skeleton found on the coast between Bird Rock and La Jolla yesterday started a widespread police investigation to determine if the gruesome discovery is connected with the mysterious disappearance seventeen months ago of Frank Brigantino of 432 East Forty-first street, and his business associate, Mrs. Jennie Bennett, 1338 Biggy street.

Near the spot where La Jolla detectives found the bones last Tuesday Brigantino's wrecked automobile was found after his disappearance with the woman. The car was found the day after they were missing, June 14, 1926. No trace of its occupants ever has been found, according to police records.

On the belief that the newly discovered skeleton may aid in penetrating the mystery surrounding Brigantino's and Mrs. Bennett's disappearance and offer a clue to their fate, Capt. Bean of the homicide squad sent a detail of detectives to La Jolla yesterday.

With the finding of the bones Bean insisted that several police officers have been placed in the hands of the police, and each will be thoroughly investigated.

The skeleton was found Tuesday and officers at first thought it to be connected with the murder of George Schick of San Diego, whose remains were never found. The coroner has advised, however, that the bones belonged to a younger man than Schick and seem to fit the description of Brigantino.

RETRIAL IN SHOOTING OF BOY BEGINSJury Selected to Decide Fate of Woman Charged With Murder

Mrs. Louise Cable of Lankershim went on trial for a second time yesterday before Judge Fricke in Superior Court on a charge of murder.

Her first trial failed to reach a verdict and she was dismissed. Mrs. Cable is charged with having shot and killed the boy when she and her husband, C. P. Cable, an attorney, ordered young Francis, his father and brother of the cable ranch near Lankershim. According to testimony brought out at the first trial, the Franks were hunting rabbits at the time of the shooting.

Attorneys for the defense sought to prove the shooting was accidental, although the state is seeking to prove Mrs. Cable deliberately fired at the boy.

A jury was obtained yesterday and taking of testimony will get under way this morning.

MONNETTE WINNER IN BONDS SUITJudgment for $94,000 Awarded Banker Against Executors of Wife's Will

Judgment for Mervin J. Monnette, Los Angeles banker, who sued the Title Insurance and Trust Company as administrator of the estate of his wife, Ethel M. Monnette, to recover $94,000 in Liberty bonds four among her effects in a safe-deposit box after her death last spring, was awarded by Superior Judge McCormick yesterday.

The court decided that on the testimony Monnette was telling the truth when he swore the Liberty bonds had been placed with the executors of Mrs. Monnette. Companion agreements that whoever survived the other was to get the bonds, which were purchased by Monnette, were explained by Monnette.

The agreement providing that Monnette should get the bonds in case of his wife's death was misleading, but Monnette produced the agreement that favored his wife, even though it might aid him to her estate. The agreement object, he had explained, was to provide for his wife in case of his death.

Mrs. Monnette, who had $26,000 when she married Monnette, left other property valued at $74,000, which goes to heirs in Iowa.

Dr. A. R. Lankford and N. C. Payton worked over him for more than an hour without avail. The body was taken to the undertaking establishment of Kiefer & Everich, Tinajero, who was employed by Charles U. Heuser, contractor, leaves a widow and children.

The girl who has the greatest mileage to her credit at the end of the thirty-day race will be pronounced the winner. The race may be run off in any Y.W.C.A. plunge in California, provided the contestant fills out the proper blanks each time, leaving a record of the distance completed.

Swimming periods are limited to one hour daily since, in the opinion of physicians, that is the ideal period for exercise in the water.

PASTORS TO TELL ABOUT HOT MAMMAShuler and Briegleb Will Take Stand Today in Trial of Main-Street Show Girls

Rev. Bob Shuler and Dr. Gustav Briegleb are expected to take the witness stand today in the courtroom of Municipal Judge William Frederickson to tell their version of the "Hot Mamma" show recently raided by police at the request of the ministers.

An all-male jury will determine the morality or immorality of the show, selection of the jury having been completed yesterday afternoon after considerable wrangling by both parties. Both defense and prosecution expressed pleasure that a jury of men had been selected.

The jurors chosen are H. H. Connor, John G. McNeill, F. L. Downey, N. Vernon, J. V. Wells, Walt Mason, C. W. Hundley, Henry Hufschmidt, William B. Brown, W. L. Jackson, H. L. Dudley and E. A. Wolcott. Chief Trial Deputy City Prosecutor Charles Eberhard will call the first witness to the stand at 10 o'clock this morning.

While the business of selecting a jury was being completed yesterday, in Judge Frederickson's court, trial of nine other defendants on charges of violating the city's "antiballroom" ordinance got under way. The trial will continue today.

BREAKWATER AT PORT FISHERMEN'S CENTERPLAYGROUND DEPARTMENT PUTS TACKLE AND BAIT STALL ON BREAKWATER

With the installation on the government breakwater at Cabrillo Beach, San Pedro, of a stall where fishing tackle and bait can be obtained, another popular fishing resort has been added by the Los Angeles Playground and Recreation Department. For the last several days the breakwater has been thronged with fishermen and many heavy catches are reported.

The breakwater is roofed with a board walk on which the playground department and the Navy have jointly installed a lighting system. Space has been allocated for the fishermen and the new bait and tackle house is opened at 5 o'clock in the morning. Street cars and buses reach within two blocks of the breakwater and for automobilists there is plenty of parking space.

FILM DOG'S TALENT LAUDEDWeeping Owner of Peter the Great Tells Court None Exceeded Animal Before Camera

In a voice that shook with emotion and an occasional lapse into the German of his youth, Edward Faust from the witness stand in Judge Marsh's court yesterday told the jury and the world that no one—not even Charlie Chaplin—was a better actor than his dog. Tears rolled down his cheeks because his dog, Peter the Great, of the films, is dead.

"He crawled over the back of the seat and shivered and cried in my arms and he died there," Faust related. The tears of Faust were not the only ones in the courtroom when he had finished, for whether or not Faust is entitled to the $250,000 he sued for, everyone in court was affected by his story of the loss of the dog.

It happened in front of the house of Fred Cyslicka, whom Faust is suing for damages. Faust said he had driven there to see another resident of the same house and found Cyslicka drunk and brandishing a gun. Three shots were fired, he declared, and at the third shot, the dog, in the rear seat of the car, yelped and crawled over the back of the seat to die in his master's lap.

Cyslicka has not told his side of the story. His counsel, Bailis Turner and Lutz and Rupert Turnbull, have indicated he will show he believed himself threatened by Faust and that he shot in self-defense. The defense has raised the question of the dog's value, asserting he could not have been worth more than a few hundred dollars.

Faust, under cross-examination yesterday, admitted he had bought Peter in Germany for $50,000 marks, which meant only $100 at the time. But this was no true measure of his value, Faust contended. He said he had taught the dog to register the emotions of fear, hate and love, which no other dog could do acceptably, and that Peter was therefore one of the greatest of film actors.

HOAX GAINS HER CHANCE AS ACTRESSFollies Girl Adopts New Name, Passes as European and Gets Studio Bid

As Jean Williams, former New York Follies girl, she crested no stir in motion-picture circles and life was just one rout after another.

Then she was in an automobile accident and she lay in a hospital for six weeks, disabled physically, but with her mind concentrated upon a daring hoax which she intended to perpetrate.

So, at the end of six weeks Jean Williams, former Follies girl was no more, and in her place, Sonia Karlov, born in Denmark, daughter of a Russian father and a Norwegian mother, left the hospital and presented herself at the De Mille studios for a screen test.

She received the test. Cecil B. De Mille sent her the fascinating Sonia to have her sign on the dotted line. When Sonia appeared before the producer yesterday, her consciousness, as he said, broke down, confessed the whole story and resigned herself to failure and oblivion. But, Fate was on her side. De Mille not only had approved of the screen tests but he thought that any girl who could put the trick over so neatly is a pretty good actress anyway. So she signed the papers and as Sonia Karlov she will wind her way to a place among the stars.

Prof. James Mussatti Speaks

Presidential Possibilities
Subject of Address*Tentative Candidates of Old Parties Discussed

COOLIDGE, Dec. 1.—When Coolidge said, "I do not want to run in 1928," he meant exactly what he said, in accordance with the definite manner in which the word "no" is used in his native State of Vermont. It is his declared policy, he said, to leave the history of American political parties to the beginning, declared that if Coolidge did choose to run he could be elected by a plurality of 15,000,000. "President Coolidge's thoughts are on national problems all the time and his actions are always characterized by caution in matters of economy no President has ever emphasized the need of thrift as has Coolidge. At the end of his present term he will have saved $500,000,000 to the United States," the professor declared.

Discussing Herbert Hoover as next in line for the Republican nomination, Prof. Mussatti reminded his audience that no Presidential candidate living west of the Mississippi had ever been elected. At present, however, he continued, "there is a factional fight on between the eastern and western Republicans, which if won by the latter, may assure the nomination for Hoover. He would be handicapped, it was pointed out, by a two-faced campaigner, not a speech-maker, and a "front-porch" campaign would result.

Characterizing Coolidge as more like the late President Roosevelt than any other political leader today, the speaker declared that a two-faced campaigner, not a speech-maker, and a "front-porch" campaign would result.

New Advisers

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 1.—Details for the nomination and election of advisers and committeemen for the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers of California for the Kern county districts are announced today by the association, which is to hold its annual convention on Tuesday, the 6th inst., and the date for election at Tuesday, the 13th inst.

The Kern county committee will serve their respective districts, where each unit will choose one adviser, who becomes a member of the advisory council and is directly associated with the management and board of directors in handling Sun-Maid affairs and financial matters.

The association's first year of work had been accomplished with a cash expenditure of $977, most of which was for the purchase of a new car for the secretary.

To finance further work of the association, each property owner along the route of the highway is to contribute one-half cent per front foot per month, with a minimum payment of 50 cents per acre.

License Clerk at Riverside
Has 40 Per Cent Loss

Last Month Particularly Hit by Statute*Santa Ana Back to Mark for November in 1922

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 1.—A 40 per cent cut in the number of marriages licensed last month compared with the same period last year, is the penalty that Cupid paid in his race with the new marriage license law, according to records of the last four months in the County Clerk's office.

With completion yesterday of four months of the three-day intention proposition, County Clerk D. G. Clayton said that his office had received only 400 couples obtained in the last four months, as compared with 739 during the same time last year.

The clerk of Riverside said the place in which to secure the legal papers permitting marriage dropped in popularity drastically immediately following the enactment of the new law. The volume for April, May, June and July of this year was 767, but the regulation that was called for by the new law was 400.

November was a particularly low month for the clerk, with only seventy-three showing up for attention. This figure is below any of the other three months.

There is a possibility that some hasty intentions are prevented of full effect by the new law, it is pointed out by Clayton, for it appears that no less than twenty-seven couples, with a change of heart, mind or change of residence, are waiting their turn.

LONG BEACH HAS SURPLUS OF GAS

Millions of Feet Blown Into
Air and Wasted

Suggested Electric Generating
Plant be Established*Pointed Out This Would Use
Excess Supply

LONG BEACH, Dec. 1.—Unless the city of Long Beach can find a market for millions of cubic feet of natural gas, which its municipally-operated gas system is now blowing into the air for lack of a better place to put it, Long Beach will go deeper into the public utility game by establishing an electric generating plant. Such a plant, City Manager Callahan pointed out today, would use up all the surplus gas supply, now being poured into the city by gas-producing concerns because of over capacity in the last summer, by a former city administration.

Possibilities of a plan for the construction of an electric generating plant, similar to those operated by the Southern California Edison Company, were discussed briefly today by the City Manager and W. H. Partridge, head of the municipal gas department.

It was pointed out at the City Hall that the city is now burning about 800,000 feet of city gas per day for its Terminal Island steam turbine plant, while its usual consumption is about 100,000 a year. A conference with Edison company officials with a view to determining whether or not more city gas can be used daily, is to be sought in the near future, it was said.

The city is now paying the Edison company approximately $200,000 a year for electricity for street lighting and other purposes and this amount can be saved to the city if Long Beach can use its surplus gas.

FOUR IN COURT AS TERRORISTS

Two Couples Held for Trial on Banditry Charges

Brought Back from Texas After Long Chase

Found Not Guilty and Case Set for 20th Inst.

Two women, wife of Albert Brown, charged with being the bandit who, with her companions, terrorized Los Angeles during a month's banditry last fall, were arraigned today before Judge J. J. Connelley.

At that time, Adams declared, the committee to which it was referred, and its passage in the coming session, is regarded as almost certain.

The provisions of the Lankford bill, as amended by the committee, are as follows: That the closing of all recreational facilities, on the theory, he asserted, that people cannot afford any other outlet for their energies but to church.

Although the bill is designed primarily to affect only the District of Columbia, the committee has included in the bill provisions for the closing of all recreational facilities, on the theory, he asserted, that people cannot afford any other outlet for their energies but to church.

JEFFRIES CASE AGAIN ON DOCKET

Goen Shop Owner Due to Face Jury Trial Today on Auto-Driving Charge

Billy Jeffries, daughter of W. P. Jeffries, will be tried by a jury in Municipal Judge Blake's court this morning on a charge of driving an automobile after her license had been revoked.

That the case will be transferred out of Judge Blake's court was indicated yesterday, because of the crowded condition of the calendar in that department, and especially since since defendants are on trial there for driving and procuring a Main-street side show in violation of the city ordinance.

Miss Jeffries, who is 25 years of age and proprietor of a gown shop on West Seventh street, was taken into custody for driving an automobile after the state highway department's license, following conviction on three traffic charges.

Through her attorney, George A. Dockweiler, she pleaded not guilty to the accusation and demanded a jury trial. If convicted, she will be sent to jail for 30 days, with a suspended sentence should be imposed.

Following the example set by numerous other society leaders in the East and in Europe, Mrs. Emma Blankenhorn and Mrs. Maybelle Murphy have announced that they will open on the 8th inst., an exclusive women's shop at Green street and Main.

Both women have been prominent in Pasadena social circles for many years and were associated with Pasadena's most exclusive society. Mrs. Blankenhorn is the divorced wife of David Blankenhorn, Pasadena millionaire.

LONG BEACH, Dec. 1.—"Oh, my God! I thought you were some one else," exclaimed a tall young man who had just struck Mrs. L. I. Coltrane, 350 Gladys avenue, in the head with a heavy weapon within a few doors of her home here, at 1110 Gladys street.

Mrs. Coltrane was removed to her home, where she was attended by her husband. Her injuries were pronounced as a severe scalp wound, but not serious.

Police were furnished with a description of the man by Jack Campbell, 350 Gladys avenue, who saw the attack. The man was described as being about 30 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches tall, and wearing a dark suit.

On complaint of Frederick L. Roth, 3573 Sunset boulevard, two men were taken into custody last night charged with the theft of a car. The car, a 1927 Ford, was valued at $3000.

The purchaser charges that the books had been tampered with and the business had not been paying. He also asserts that a bookkeeper had been employed by the former owner to falsify the accounts.

CITY FOUND SAFE FROM TREMBLORS

World Authority States Southland Strata Free from Major Perils

Dr. Robert T. Hill, geologist of international repute, yesterday made public the results of an exhaustive study of the geology and seismology of Southern California, declaring that no other section in the United States enjoys greater freedom from major earthquake perils.

Business and financial leaders assembled as the guests of the Building Owners and Managers Association of Los Angeles at the Alhambra were told by this eminent authority that the menace of an earthquake disaster is not only greatly lessened, but the predictions of this nature are founded on erroneous data.

Corroborating Dr. Hill in his investigation and assertions, Ralph Arnold, also a geologist of wide reputation, took the position that there is no real need for earthquake coverage in Los Angeles. He cited, in addition, certain geological data in support of Dr. Hill's statement.

Dr. Hill's statement was a retraction of a letter from the acting director of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey in which a retraction was made of the calculations on which Dr. Willis admittedly based his prophetic of major seismic disturbances in various parts of California.

The original calculations showed a movement, northward of about 20 feet, and southward of about 20 feet in thirty years, which Dr. Willis interpreted to forecast an important earth correction in Southern California within a few years.

He also explained that geologically, Southern California is dissimilar from Northern California, belonging to the earth structure of Northern Mexico.

This, he said, is a relief of the earth's crust in Northern California and not a correction of the earth's crust in Southern California.

J. B. Lippincott, prominent civil engineer and geologist, introduced Dr. Hill and told of his outstanding accomplishments as a geologist and a scientist. Among his notable contributions have been the paper on the geology of the Panama Canal site.

The meeting was called by E. P. Cline, president of the Building Owners and Managers Association. A. L. Lathrop, president, and C. A. Corbett, executive secretary, were in charge of the proceedings.

Glendale Corporation Plans to Land Planes on Hotel Roofs by Means of Anchors and Cables and Elevators and What Not—If Permission Given Roofs of hotels in fifty of the principal cities of the United States will become the landing places of passenger planes shortly after February 1, if plans and ideas announced yesterday by Thomas B. Slate, president and manager of the Slate Aircraft Corporation of Glendale, are approved by the hotel owners, by chambers of commerce in the half-hundred cities, and by the air-traveling public.

There are many details yet to be worked out, Mr. Slate said. One of the chief features being the anchoring of the plane to a platform on the roof, the anchor being a steel cable being dropped from the plane while cruising over the hotel, and the unloading of an inclined elevator running from plane to roof, and the carrying of passengers from plane by elevator to roof, thence down the hotel elevator to terra firma.
